Churchill Buried In Country Churchyard

Subzero Cold Hits State, New Arctic Wave Moving In

CHICAGO (AP)—Illinois residents shivered in sub-zero temperatures Saturday and forecasters said another blast of arctic air is bearing down on the Midwest.

Weather experts said no relief is in sight within the next few days. They added that the new Arctic wave, which is expected to reinforce the current cold spell, is forming over east-central Canada, east of Hudson Bay. It extends 30,000 feet up and is likely to strike Chicago and suburbs by Sunday night.

Lake Zurich in Lake County recorded an unofficial 21 degrees below zero Saturday morning.

Chicago's Midway Airport reported an official overnight low of -8 while O'Hare International Airport had -13. O'Hare has not had an above zero reading since 5 o'clock Thursday evening.

Other overnight readings ranged from -14 at Rockford to zero at Vandalia.

Frol Kozlov Dies, Was Nikita's Right-Hand Man

MOSCOW (AP)—Frol R. Kozlov, the No. 2 man in the Soviet Union during much of former Premier Khrushchev's rule until he was felled by illness, died Saturday.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported Kozlov, 56, died in Moscow of "acute circulatory insufficiency in the heart vessels" after "repeated disturbances of cerebral circulation with cerebral hemorrhages." He suffered a stroke two years ago which incapacitated him, and a heart attack two years before that.

Tass said the Communist party Central Committee and the Soviet Cabinet had decided to honor Kozlov with burial beneath the walls of the Kremlin. Kozlov had the role of Khrushchev's right-hand man, a post that was taken by Leonid I. Brezhnev after illness struck Kozlov. Last October Brezhnev succeeded Khrushchev as first secretary of the Soviet Communist party and in November Kozlov was dropped from the party's ruling Presidium.

He apparently had been out of action but remained until his death a member of the party Central Committee. He also was a member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, the parliamentary body that turns party decisions into formal law.

From March 1958 until May 1960, when he became party secretary, he was a first deputy premier under Khrushchev.

The Illinois Division of Highways reported that roads south of a line from Keokuk, Iowa, to Hoopston, Vermilion County, Ill., were snow-packed with scattered slick spots. Hazardous driving warnings were in effect for central and Southern Illinois.

High temperatures Saturday were not expected to go above a range of 5 to 12 above in northern Illinois and 12 to 18 in the southern part of the state.

Lows are expected to range from 5 to 12 below zero in the north and from zero to 5 below in Southern Illinois. Light snow flurries by nightfall were predicted for central and Southern Illinois.

Traffic was tied up in St. Louis all day Friday by a snowfall of 5.3 inches. There were many accidents but none serious. Some buses were more than one hour late.

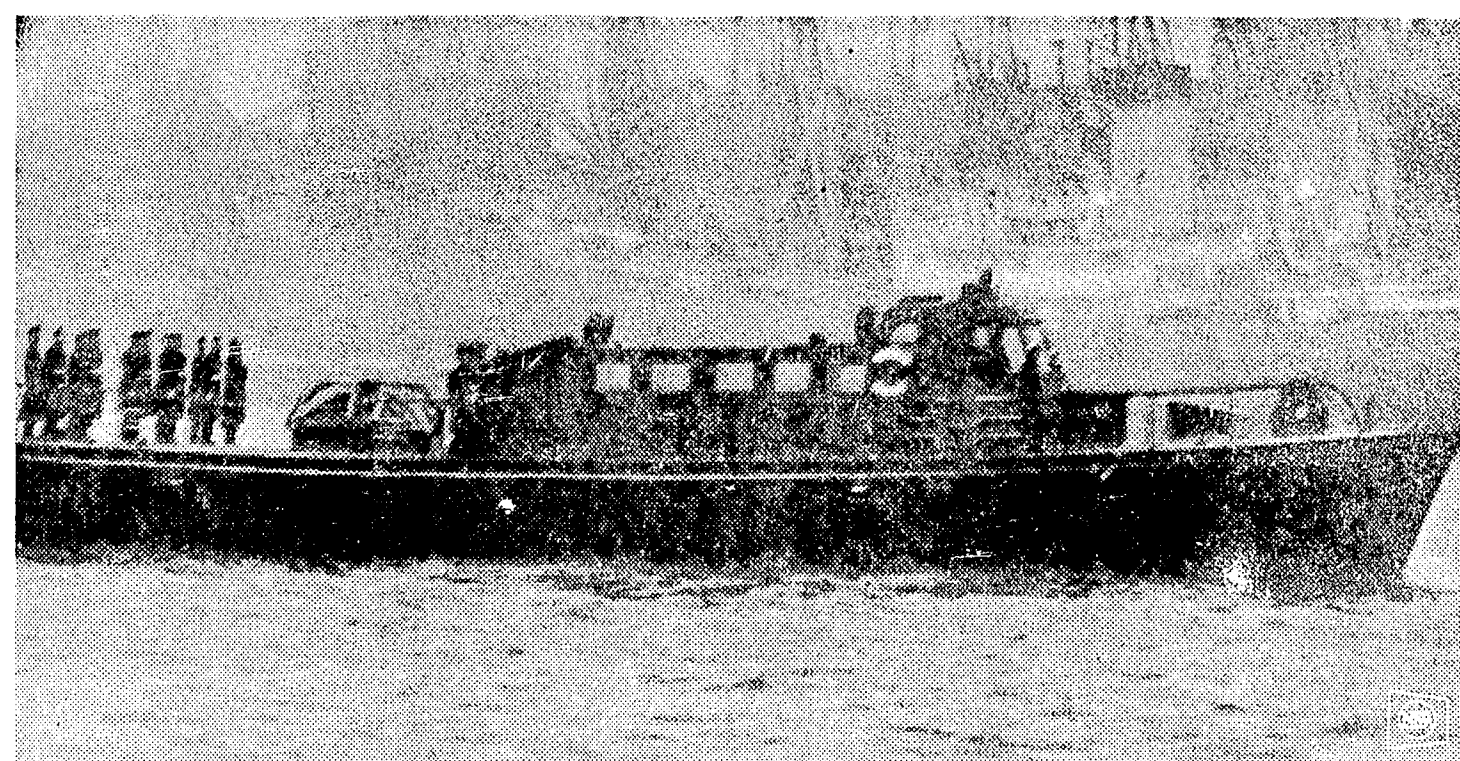

Fire In Tulsa Apartment Kills Four Of Family

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Four persons died Saturday in an early morning fire which rushed through a two-level luxury apartment building so fast and so thoroughly that firemen said its origin probably would never be determined.

The fire destroyed a 32-unit section of the London Square Apartments, driving about 100 families into windy, 20-degree weather shortly after midnight. No serious injuries other than the four deaths were reported.

The bodies of Theresa Fairchild Kavanaugh, 25, and her three children—Stephen Paul, 6; Mary Sharon, 30 and Eileen Marie, 1—were discovered the charred ruins of the building after the flames were brought under control.

Mrs. Kavanaugh's husband, Joseph had been at a sales meeting in Tulsa and was returning home when the fire was discovered.

A TOUCHING MOMENT IN CEREMONY—Sir Winston Churchill's long association with the British Royal Navy and the sea is reflected in this portion of the funeral ceremony with which Britain says farewell to her fallen war hero. Grenadier Guardsmen stand stiffly at attention as a launch bearing a flag-draped coffin makes its way up the Thames River to the point where the final journey by train begins. Wide Areas Feel Bite Of Winter

By The Associated Press

Snow piled up on icy roads in a broad, frigid area of the South on Saturday.

The fall ranged up to nine inches at Soco Gap and six inches at Balsam Gap in the Blue Ridge Mountains and seven inches at Newfound Gap in the Great Smokies.

In Winston-Salem, N.C., where four inches of snow accumulated rapidly, police helped transport nurses to hospitals because of bus delays and the heavy going generally.

Snow fell in many sections of Dixie where roads already were slick with ice, and freezing cold held it firmly in place.

In Virginia, snow depths ranged from seven inches at Bluefield, on the mountainous Virginia-West Virginia border to a bare inch and a half in the usually hard hit Winchester area. Richmond had three inches and Roanoke five.

Temperatures were forecast to drop as low as zero in some mountain areas Saturday night and to remain low Sunday.

The snowfall began before dawn in Washington, D.C. An emergency plan, requiring cars to be equipped with snow tires or chains, went into effect.

Peace For War-Torn Viet Nam: Reds Declare 7-Day Cease-Fire

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—War-torn South Viet Nam appeared headed into a week of peace Saturday as the Viet Cong announced a seven day cease-fire to celebrate the lunar new year.

The Buddhists also observe the holiday but there were indications they plan to resume antigovernment activity as soon as the celebration ends.

Extremist youth groups in central Viet Nam have said they are not satisfied with Wednesday's coup in which Premier Tran Van Huong was overthrown. They want Brig. Gen. Nguyen Khanh Thi, the military governor of central Viet Nam, to become premier.

The youths have also said they want U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor thrown out of the country.

The Viet Cong cease-fire has become an annual affair and is usually respected. Government forces remain on combat alert but in past years no important military activity took place.

As usual, the Viet Cong has invited government troops to join them for festive dinners in Viet Cong hamlets.

A Viet Cong broadcast said the guerrillas "will not attack positions and units of the Saigon puppet troops to allow them to return to their families and native villages to enjoy the festival with the condition that they will not carry any arms whatever."

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who took over from Huong in Wednesday's coup, issued an order of the day:

ISRAELI PRESIDENT TURNS DOWN BID TO LUNCH WITH QUEEN

LONDON (AP)—President Salomon Shazar of Israel, 76, had to turn down an invitation to lunch Saturday with Queen Elizabeth II.

The president, and other Israeli representatives, walked a mile from the Savoy Hotel to St. Paul's Cathedral because Jewish religious law forbade them to travel in a vehicle on the Sabbath—Saturday. They walked back too.

Advisers said another two-mile trip on foot to Buckingham Palace would have been too much for the president.

NATURE DIRECTOR OF FB NATURAL RESOURCES DEPT. CHICAGO (AP)—Clifford G. McIntire of Perham, Maine, has been appointed director of the American Farm Bureau's natural resources department.

Charles B. Shuman of Sullivan, Ill., president of the federation, said Saturday that McIntire will assume his new duties Feb. 1 in the federation's office in Washington, D.C.

McIntire was a member of the committee that organized the Maine Farm Bureau Association in 1950. He served seven terms as a member of the U.S. House of Representatives from 1951 until his retirement this month. He is 56.

"Our country is stepping into a new destiny. All difficulties and differences of last year have been settled, so every one of us can aim our activities toward the urgent and common goal—crushing the Communists and saving our homeland." Friday night Khanh went browsing through Saigon's flower market wearing civilian clothes and without bodyguards.

Khanh's general staff was reported still deeply split. A U.S. official said of him: "He's already riding three horses at one time and he's a pretty good horseman. But he's always in an unstable condition of control."

State Legislature Starts 2nd Month, 376 Bills Introduced, None Passed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The 74th Illinois Legislature starts its second month this week, battling 0 to 376 so far.

That means 376 bills introduced and none passed to Gov. Otto Kerner.

Kerner may get the first bill this week or next. The farthest advanced measures are Senate bills in the House.

One would authorize school bus transportation of pupils to school-sponsored activities. Another would give funds to the State Crime Commission which has been operating in the red.

High priority action is expected in the House on bills at passage stage to permit state aid payments in full to grade and high schools.

If the total of about $27 million is not voted in a hurry, schools will get about 19 percent less than normal from the state in the remaining five months of the biennium.

At the committee level, the House will take up elimination of the office of constable. A Republican bill to reapportion state Senate districts is slated for disclosure this week.

Conflict of interest bills and anti crime legislation may plunge Senate committees into controversy Tuesday.

The anti crime bills would heighten penalties for syndicate gambling, outlaw criminal usury known as the juice racket, and add incendiaries to the list of weapons forbidden for sale or possession.

Also Tuesday, a Senate Executive subcommittee takes up preparation of a code of ethics for state employees. Establishing ways of identifying conflicts of interest of lawmakers is another subcommittee concern.

The Republican leadership has offered a resolution suggesting certain actions be considered evidence of conflict on their face, and should be submitted to authority for a ruling.

Sen. David Davis, R-Bloomington, in a weekend speech served notice that some limits on such prima facie evidence would be in the public interest as he saw it.

"No farmer could ever vote on agriculture bills," he said. "No lawyer could ever sit on the judiciary committee."

"I'm silly enough to believe," Davis told a Bloomington civic club, "that you send me to Springfield because of the farming and business interests I have which tend to make me a conservative and give me an insight into these matters; and I don't intend to prevent myself from voting on the things I know best."

DUKE, DUCHESS OF GLOUCESTER HURT

LONDON (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester were injured Saturday night when their limousine left the road and overturned in a field on their way home from Sir Winston Churchill's funeral.

A police spokesman said the duchess, 63, had "fairly severe head injuries." The duke, 64, had head and hand injuries. They were taken to a hospital at Bedford. The duke is an uncle of Queen Elizabeth II. He is the third son of the late King George V.

STUDENTS REBEL NO MORE TURNIP GREENS COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—No more turnip greens will be served in the A&M Consolidated School cafeteria. Supt. W. T. Riedel told trustees this week future menus will exclude greens. Parents and complaining students were not eating in the cafeteria because of greens and other vegetables on the menus.

After Majestic, Solemn Funeral Held In St. Paul's Cathedral

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill was consigned to the ages Saturday in a country churchyard at Bladon, forever a part of the English soil he loved and shielded so fiercely.

The eloquent old statesman slipped into history after a majestic and solemn state funeral at St. Paul's Cathedral.

Kings, queens, commoners, presidents, prime ministers and statesmen from all the continents sat under the imposing dome of St. Paul's to honor the man who as prime minister thrilled the anti-Nazi world in 1940 with his defiant boast: "We shall never surrender."

More than 3,000 of the noble and the lowly mingled in the vast cathedral, which echoed to the strains of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," an American hymn.

Years before his death, Sir Winston asked that the hymn be sung at his funeral "in memory of my American mother," Jennie Jerome of New York.

Lady Churchill, 79, and her son, Randolph, were seated only a short distance from Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip. The royal chairs faced the catafalque from the west. Lady Churchill and Randolph were in the first row of mourners benches in the south transept, facing the catafalque from the south. Only a few feet intervened.

Chief Justice Earl Warren and Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman represented the United States. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, head of the delegation, had a cold and on doctors orders did not attend the funeral. President Johnson had been barred by his doctors from coming to London because of a cold.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower attended as a guest of the Churchill family. As a launch bore Sir Winston's body up the Thames River later, Eisenhower went on British television and said the United States was glad to claim as its own his old comrade in arms.

When the 30-minute service, conducted amid all the glitter of royalty, was over, Sir Winston's coffin was taken up the Thames to Festival Pier and Waterloo Station. From there, it was taken by train to Bladon, where Churchill was buried beside his mother and his father, Lord Randolph Churchill. The brief burial service was rigidly private.

Police estimated that more than a million persons poured out of their homes in a raw wind to line the London route of march.

Some sat in the streets all night to watch the procession from Westminster Hall to St. Paul's. Churchill's coffin had lain in state in the hall for three days while 321,360 persons passed in respect and affection. This was more than the 305,806 who filed past the bier of King George VI in 1952.

The people Saturday packed Whitehall, Trafalgar Square, the Strand and Fleet Street and Ludgate Hill, leading up to the cathedral. Some wrapped themselves in newspapers to protect themselves from the biting cold.

For Englishmen this was the last day of the Churchill era. For, when the history of this stirring and violent century is written, it certainly will record the wave of emotion that has swept this island since Churchill's death last Sunday.

The great doors of the cathedral swung open at 8:45 a.m. (Continued on Page Eleven)

Floods, Slides Hit Northwest, Three Lose Lives

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A rain-weakened cliff crashed into the Columbia River Saturday. The wave it set up rolled 1,000 feet across the river where it washed over the southwest end of Puget Island and killed a man.

The slides and flooding in the Pacific Northwest killed two people Friday at Randle, Wash. The Weather Bureau said rain and unseasonably warm temperatures which melt mountain snowpacks will continue through Sunday. There will be some nighttime cooling.

Hundreds of families were evacuated Saturday from their homes in Oregon, Washington and Idaho as rivers rushed out of their banks.

U.N. Is Dangerously Sick—Prestige At Lowest Point In 20 Years

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

From the ashes of World War II emerged a vision of one world, a union of humanity for peace which could be made reality through an organization for international security.

That organization — the United Nations — seems dangerously sick today. The vision of one world, so bright 20 years ago, is a shattered dream. The erosion of two decades of cold war has taken its toll.

Indonesia, which came into existence with U.N. help, has quit the organization and has told it to "go to hell" with its help. The Indonesian government has joined with Red China in heaping scorn on the United Nations as a creature of "imperialists and colonialists," raising a question whether Peking is even interested in becoming a member.

In Africa, the United Nations sent soldiers to fight for the territorial unity of the newly independent Congo. But when a crisis arose recently, little attention was paid to U.N. peace-making efforts.

It sent a peacekeeping force to Cyprus to contain a civil war which could have burgeoned into something far more serious. It was always there as a forum, a safety valve in dispute among nations.

But the peace organization — its membership doubled from 51 to 115 in its 20 years — faced crisis after crisis. When the world's giants were not directly involved in confrontation, the United Nations could act effectively. But when there was a direct showdown between the giants, the United Nations was by-passed. The big powers settled matters between themselves.

The United Nations was doing its job, but it was not the United Nations envisioned two decades ago in the euphoria of liberation from war. Then, the statesmen hailed its creation as a day of glory, a beacon for humanity, the hope of the world, the sturdy edifice of peace.

Looking forward to the founding session in San Francisco, President Franklin D. Roosevelt said the lesson of World War II was that "we have learned to be citizens of the world, members of the human community."

France hailed the coming of the United Nations as "a collective force capable of bringing about respect for its decisions."

The words were brave. The United Nations was to be an instrument to help all countries liberated in the war to solve their political and economic problems by democratic means, to insure their right to choose their own forms of government, to build in cooperation with other nations a "world of order under law."

That was the concept presented to the world after the 1945 summit meeting at Yalta. American, Soviet and British chiefs convoked the founding meeting for April that year. President Roosevelt predicted "the end of a system of unilateral actions and exclusive alliances and spheres of influence."

Other expedients which have been tried for centuries and have failed.

But the ink was hardly dry on the charter before the Soviet Union attempted to take over the occupation of all Berlin. The Russians backed away before Allied firmness, but it was a straw in the wind.

New hope was generated at the American-Soviet-British summit at Potsdam that July. Stalin pledged the occupied East European nations a free choice of governments.

Winston Churchill pictured the division of Europe as an ominous augury. In August 1945, he coined a famous phrase: "Tragedy on a prodigious scale," he warned, "is imposing itself behind the Iron Curtain which at present divides Europe in two."

In 1956, for the first time, the United Nations set up a peace-keeping force. It was to deal with the Suez crisis, and Moscow voted for it. But years later the Russians refused to pay their share of the costs. The Union attempted to take over keeping operations in the Congo. Then once again denied their obligation to pay. Other nations, Communist and non-Communist, have also refused to pay their shares, for one reason or another. The United Nations is in financial crisis.

The organization received a shot in the arm in 1960 when its session was attended by chiefs of state from around the world — President Dwight D. Eisen-

Model Housing Code Prescribes Requirements For Installation, Maintenance Of Equipment

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of six articles prepared by the League of Women Voters concerning a proposed Model Housing Code for Jacksonville. This is the longest such article, but one of great interest to the average homeowner. Many interested citizens are saving each article for reference in the future.

Prepared by League Of Women Voters

This is the fourth in a series of articles covering the requirements of the proposed housing code. This article will deal with Part 5, "Equipment Requirements."

It should be pointed out that, for the most part, this section sets up standards for installation and maintenance of such equipment as shall be considered necessary and desirable by the owner and/or tenant, if it is installed on the premises.

Except for minimum plumbing facilities, minimum provisions for cooking, heating and refrigeration, and the requirement that residential structures be wired for electricity, it does not require the presence of any specified equipment. In some cases where unusually hazardous conditions may exist, safety devices may be required, however.

The opening paragraph of this section outlines its function: it provides that equipment installed in a building "shall be installed, located and maintained so that under normal conditions of use such equipment and systems will not be a danger to health or welfare, a danger because of structural defects, or a source of ignition, or a radiation hazard, and will not create excessive noise, or otherwise become a nuisance." Protection against freezing shall be provided where necessary, and moving parts of machinery shall be shielded to prevent accidents.

Plumbing
"Plumbing systems shall be maintained in sanitary and serviceable condition," and shall not be allowed to cause damage to the structure.

Potable water (approved for drinking and cooking) "from an approved source shall be available at all times in residential buildings," and must be kept free from contamination. "Private or unsafe water supplies" may not be connected to the public water system. Water supply systems must provide sufficient water pressure for the efficient use of the fixtures. Water used in heating or cooling systems may not be recirculated through the plumbing fixtures. Hot water supply systems shall have "safety devices arranged to relieve hazardous pressures and excessive temperatures."

"Plumbing fixtures shall be drained to a sewage drainage system and such systems shall be connected to a public sewer or to an adequate and approved system of sewage disposal;" it must not be allowed to become "a health hazard or nuisance." Sewage must be treated in recognized and approved ways so that it is "rendered harmless" before it is "discharged into the ground or into a waterway." Nothing which will "clog the pipes, produce explosive mixtures, destroy the pipes or their joints or interfere unduly with the sewage disposal process" may be put into a building drainage system unless the system has approved devices for dealing with such substances. Each fixture connected to the sewage drainage system must have a water seal trap, and there must be "adequate cleanliness" so that pipes "may be readily cleaned."

The system must have adequate circulation of air so that "siphonage, aspiration, or pressure will not cause a loss of trap seal under ordinary conditions of use." Vents must be protected against clogging, frost closure, the return of foul air to the building, or the creation of a nuisance to adjacent premises. Drains connected to appliances which have to do with food, water, etc., must have air breaks to prevent back-up of sewage through the pipes.

Roofs and paved areas shall be drained and where storm drainage is available they shall be drained in this system. Storm drains must not let water flow onto sidewalks. Buildings must be protected against backflow from storm drains. "Leaders and gutters, if used, shall be constructed of noncombustible material, except that wood leaders and gutters may be used for buildings not more than three stories high."

Buildings must have plumbing systems "designed to dispose of the sewage from all fixtures and to furnish cold water to every water closet and urinal, and hot and cold water to every sink, lavatory, bathtub, and shower required therein. In multiple dwellings, hot water shall be furnished at 130 degrees F. to 140 degrees F. temperature range from 6:00 a.m. to midnight."

Each dwelling unit must be provided with at least one kitchen sink, one toilet, one bathtub or shower, and one lavatory. In multiple dwellings where there are individual rooms or suites, for every six rooms the following fixtures are required: One toilet, one bathtub or shower, and one lavatory. Outdoor toilet facilities are prohibited on residential premises. Plumbing fixtures "shall be made of smooth non-absorbent material and shall be free from concealed fouling surfaces;" they shall be spaced for reasonable accessibility, and shall be in accessible, lighted and ventilated spaces.

Home swimming pools must be provided with a supply of clean water, with adequate drains for pool and surrounding area, and with means of keeping dirt and sand out. They must be protected against pollution. The filtration equipment must be adequate for maintaining the sanitary quality of the water. If this equipment gives off dangerous fumes, it must be in a ventilated room.

Water supply tanks must be kept "water-tight, verminproof, rodentproof, resistant to corrosion," and capable of withstanding normal pressures. Their supports must be non-combustible, and must not be used to support other equipment unless specially designed to do so. Drains must be provided and kept in working condition. Tanks must "furnish water in sufficient quantity and pressure."

Fuel Gas
Fuel gas piping systems must be kept "gas-tight, safe and operative under conditions of use;" they must provide a sufficient supply of gas for the gas-burning appliances in use. There must be at least one "accessible means for shutting off all gas supply," and one individual shutoff valve near each appliance. Gas services, meters, and pressure regulators must be protected from damage. Gas refrigerators and ranges must have clearance for ventilation, and must be "maintained in good operating condition."

If high-pressure gas is used, there must be a device for reducing the pressure unless the equipment is designed to use gas at such pressures. "Undiluted liquefied petroleum gas in liquid form shall not be conveyed through piping equipment and systems in buildings." Liquefied petroleum gas "shall not be vaporized by devices utilizing open flame or open electrical coil." (Note: L.P. gas, used in the normal way and installed according to customary, accepted procedures, is a gas—not a liquid—in household pipes, and is not prohibited.)

Replacement of containers (where two are installed) must be possible without shutting off the flow of gas to equipment; such containers must be designed, stored and located so that they will not constitute a hazard; safety devices shall be provided to relieve excessive pressures; a shutoff device must be located outside the building, and must be kept in good operating condition.

Heating
Between November 1 and May 1, residential buildings must have heating equipment "to maintain a temperature of not less than 70 degrees F. at a distance of 3' and more from exterior wall, and at a level of 5' above the floor." In multiple dwellings, 70 degrees F. must be maintained from 6:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. when the temperatures falls below 55 degrees F.

If the heating equipment burns fuel, the smoke must not create odors, dust, etc., that will be a nuisance or be "detrimental to the health, comfort, safety or property of any person."

Heating ducts must meet requirements set up for ventilating ducts. Fuel-burning water heaters shall not be located in sleeping rooms, bathrooms, or toilet rooms. Fuel-burning equipment must be fastened permanently in place, and fuel pipes or tubing must be of solid metal. Combustible materials located near heat-producing equipment must be protected against excessive temperatures. Direct-fired heat-producing equipment must have sufficient ventilation to provide complete combustion and to prevent accumulation of heat in the room in which it is located.

Heating equipment which burns solid or liquid fuel must be "connected to suitable chimneys or flues" and not to gas vents. "Unvented heaters burning liquid fuel shall be prohibited." Fuel-burning space heaters located in sleeping rooms or rooms normally kept closed shall be connected to a suitable chimney, flue or gas vent. Gas-fired equipment must be suitably vented when it would be hazardous not to do so.

Safety Devices
Equipment that develops high pressures or temperatures must be provided with safety devices. Automatically-operated heat-producing equipment must have cutoff valves to stop the fuel supply if the pilot light or other ignition should fail, or if the water level in a steam boiler drops below a safe level, or if safe levels of heat or pressure are exceeded.

Heating equipment for garages of multiple dwellings must be in heater rooms, unless such equipment is at or above grade, is located in vehicle storage space, and burns gas or liquid fuel.

Chimneys, Flues, and Gasvents
Chimneys, flues, gasvents and their supports must be "safe, durable, smoke tight, noncombustible, and capable of withstanding the action of flue gases." They must convey smoke and fumes to the outer air. Connection of smoke pipes or gas vents must be possible without restriction of the flue; and such connections must be present in not more than one story of a building. "Fuel-burning equipment and fireplaces located in different tenancies shall not be connected to the same flue." Nearby combustible materials shall be protected from excessive temperatures. Any chimney or flue which may emit sparks or embers shall have a noncombustible spark arrester, which will permit clear passage of flue gases, but will prevent passage of embers and will not be easily clogged by soot.

Incinerators
"shall be of adequate capacity for the intended use." If an incinerator is connected with a flue, it must have additional fuel provided so that all refuse is completely burned. It must have an approved spark arrester, a suitable chimney or flue, and connections that will not be clogged by refuse. Service openings "shall be readily accessible to the building occupants," and shall be marked with signs "prohibiting disposal of highly flammable substances in incinerators."

Electrical
Electrical wiring and equipment shall be installed in an approved manner and maintained so that it will not be a source of danger. It must be "firmly secured to the surface on which it is mounted," and must be suitable for or protected from conditions of dampness, excessive temperatures, presence of gases, etc. It shall be protected against excessive current, and from high voltage caused by lightning or other power surges. If it produces arcs or sparks, it shall be enclosed or isolated. Service equipment and over-current protection devices (fuse boxes, etc.) must be in a readily accessible location.

"Residential buildings and occupancies shall be wired for electricity, and lighting equipment shall be installed throughout to provide adequate illumination for the intended use of each space." There shall be a light switch in each unit near the entrance. In multiple dwellings, exits shall be clearly marked, in large letters, and such signs shall be illuminated at all times when the building is occupied. If the exit sign is not clearly visible from some parts of the building, directional signs must be provided.

Cooking and Refrigeration
"Each dwelling unit (see list of definitions) shall be provided with appropriate cooking and refrigeration equipment," which "shall be maintained in good operating condition." Gas-burning cooking equipment must be permanently connected in place, and connections must be made "with pipe or tubing of solid metal." If it burns solid fuel it shall be appropriately vented.

Communal kitchens must contain at least: 1 kitchen sink; 1 kitchen gas or electric stove, with an oven and at least 4 burners; one electric or gas type refrigerator at least 8 cubic feet in size. Communal dining space—in the kitchen or in a separate room—must contain "at least 1 dining chair and 2 linear feet of dining space for each occupant permitted in a dining room at any particular time."

Air Conditioning and Mechanical Ventilation
In one- and two-family dwellings: Exhaust air from dwelling unit shall not be recirculated through another. Ducts must be secured in place and firestopped. In multiple dwellings: "Refrigerants that are highly flammable shall not be used." Ventilating systems must not allow the rapid spread of fire or smoke through them, and must not subject nearby materials to excessive heat. Stairways, passageways, exits, etc., "shall not be used as plenum chambers." Ducts must be secured in place and firestopped; ducts and equipment must be noncombustible. Filters must not constitute a fire or smoke hazard. Ducts must be separated from nearby combustible construction by a space of at least 1 inch, or by 1/2" of noncombustible insulating material. Air for ventilation must be outside air, or "quality-controlled." Air shall not be recirculated if it contains odors, fumes or vapors. Intake and exhaust openings shall not constitute a hazard or nuisance, and shall not allow fire, smoke, fumes or foreign matter to be drawn into the system. They must provide sufficient incoming and outgoing air to allow the required circulation; incoming air must be from an uncontaminated source.

Fuel Oil
"Fuel oil shall be received, stored, and conveyed by means of fixed liquidtight equipment." Tanks must be vented, and must not be a hazard. Automatic boilers and furnaces using fuel oil must have remote control switches to stop the flow of oil in case of emergency. "Filling, emptying and venting of tanks shall be by means of fixed piping," with pipes to underground tanks pitched toward the tanks, and terminals of pipes located at a safe distance outside buildings.

Fire Protection In Multiple Dwellings
Fire alarm systems and sprinkler equipment, where required, shall be "maintained in proper operating condition at all times." Water supply valves to sprinkler equipment shall be kept in the open position, and sprinkler heads shall be free of corrosion and paint. Standpipe systems, gate valves at hose stations, and hose shall be "maintained in proper operating condition at all times." Each oil burner, for boiler, furnace or central hot water heater shall be provided with an approved hand fire extinguisher or two rounded-bottom gauges filled with sand;" any required extinguisher shall be "in its designated location" and in condition for immediate operation.

Elevators, Dumbwaiters and Escalators in Multiple Dwellings
These shall be kept free of physical and fire hazards, and must have conspicuous signs indicating their capacity. Elevator cars must have provisions for emergency signaling. Hoistways and pits shall be kept free of refuse; machine rooms shall be kept clean and shall not be used for storage of flammable liquids or other unrelated materials. Protective devices shall be operative at all times except during tests or maintenance.

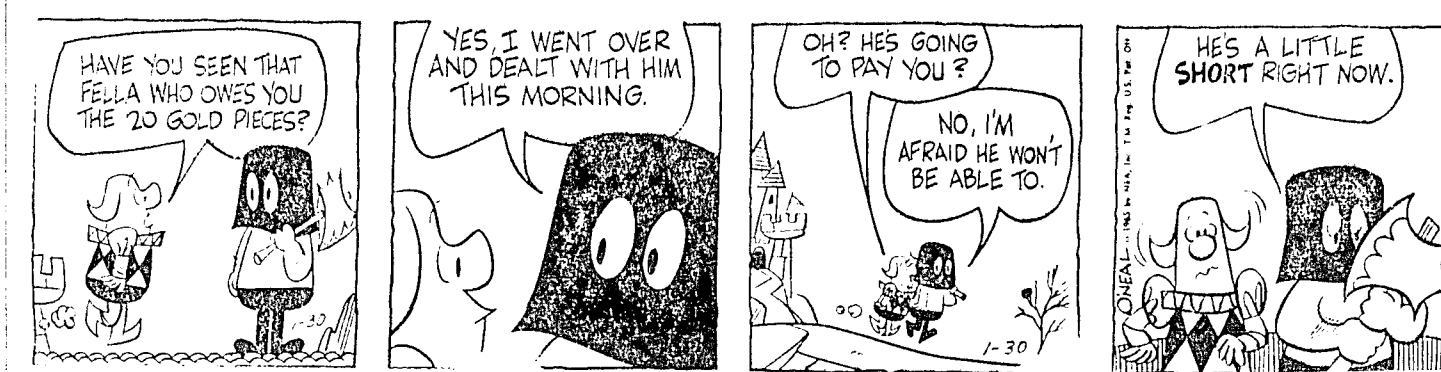

The next article will deal with Part 6 of Chapter I, "Property Maintenance Requirements"; and with Chapter II, Mobile Homes and Mobile Home Courts. The League of Women Voters of Morgan County actively supports the adoption of this code, and believes that it is a vital step forward for a more progressive Jacksonville.

U.S. Defense Miracle From 'Missile Gap'

By EVERETT S. ALLEN
New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the moment, the United States has more than 800 fully armed ICBMs deployed on launchers, 600 of them Minutemen, almost all in "hardened" — underground, concrete — silos dispersed over a total area of more than 100,000 square miles, from New York State to California.

An accounting of how and why this technological miracle came about is the story of the nonexistent "missile gap."

As World War II neared an end, the Soviet Union, Britain and the United States acquired all of the German technical data and military devices they could. The Russians did particularly well, their army overrunning most of Germany's rocket production and assembly facilities.

The director of Germany's Pennemunde rocket center, Maj. Gen. Walter Dornberger, and Dr. Werner von Braun, who worked on Germany's V2 missile program, surrendered to U.S. forces rather than be taken by Soviet troops. The Dornberger-Von Braun team of 130 scientists and engineers, together with valuable documents, parts and scientific reports, arrived in the United States in the summer of 1945. But now the war was over and the United States did not feel the need, or the desire, to establish a single high-priority missile program at that time.

However, Allen Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, recalled that "by 1952-53, the missile situation in the Soviet Union became one of our major intelligence targets. Every effort was made to intercept returning Germans the Russians had been able to hire because the former were starving."

Dr. Jerome Wiesner, former science adviser to President John F. Kennedy, was "first conscious" of the missile in the summer of 1952. He recalled, "I heard a briefing by an Air Force officer, in which he described something that resembled the Empire State Building and estimated it would take the Soviets until 1965 to develop it, so that we need not be concerned for a long time."

This was a widely held view. There was considerable doubt about being able to miniaturize the nuclear weapon so it could be placed within the nose of a missile-type vehicle. We learned to our sorrow that the Russians didn't wait to perfect miniaturization. In the 1950s, missile discussion in the United States split into what Dulles called "a dichotomy of skeptics and believers."

Among the latter were Dr. John von Neumann of the Princeton University Institute for Advanced Studies and Trevor Gardner, who early in 1953 was appointed special assistant secretary for research and development for the Air Force. Gardner immediately addressed priority efforts to the missile.

It was Gardner who established the Strategic Missiles Evaluation Committee which came to be known as the "Teapot Committee." Von Neumann was chairman, and Dr. Wiesner, one of its 11 members. This group spent a year in studies, listening to military leaders, scientists, and intelligence information, and by the winter of 1953, emerged fully convinced that we could build an ICBM in four to six years, and that the Russians had a several-year lead on us, as well as a program exclusive of that assisted by German workers.

With the Rand Corp. — a non-profit research and development group established by General H.H. (Hap) Arnold of the Air Force in 1946 — the Teapot Committee believed the nation was in grave danger and called for an aggressive missile effort that President Dwight D. Eisenhower "backed to the hilt," in the words of one member.

Laboratory experiments had convinced the Von Neumann committee that the next U.S. nuclear test series, in the summer of 1953 would produce, and it did, a lot lighter bomb; if so, the payload, instead of being 10,000 to 12,000 pounds, need be only 3,000 to 4,000. This would negate the Air Force argument that a missile would be hard to build because it would have to contain a huge nuclear-fission bomb.

Recalled Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, Ret., former Army missile chief: "By 1956, it was recommended to us that we go for an IRBM — medium-range missile — because we thought they had ICBMs — long-range missiles — and this was the best thing we could do in a hurry."

At this point, in July 1956, the U2, an American aircraft that can take 4,000 pictures of a strip 125 miles wide and 2,174 miles long from a height of 60,000 to 70,000 feet, began to overfly the Soviet Union. The Air Force had developed something better than radar screens in Turkey. From these flights, "We gained, rather quickly, extraordinary results from photographing their major base and the complex around it. After that, we were able to watch its development with reasonable accuracy. Other Air Force detection methods were also developed, permitting more accurate monitoring on test firings."

The Gaither committee, established by Eisenhower, was trying to decide when the Russians might be likely to have a large number of missiles. One former member commented to me, "The consensus was 1960, for an operational missile force. We thought it would take us two years longer, so we were at a serious disadvantage."

In the summer of 1957, a high-ranking Air Force general commented to Wiesner in the presence of a large group, "You're exaggerating this missile business. There will be no operational missile in my lifetime." On Aug. 26, 1957, a few days after the general — who is still on active duty — made his prediction, the Soviet news agency Tass announced launching of a long-range ballistic missile.

U.S. intelligence replied, in the words of Dulles, by "sounding the alarm." The Russians fired three more satellites between Oct. 4, 1957, and May 11, 1958, the last being Sputnik III, weighing 2,326 pounds, contrasted with three of our shots that had payloads of only 31, 28 and 3.25 pounds.

A rocket vehicle capable of launching a heavy satellite is not precisely the same thing as having an ICBM, but military authorities conceded that when the Russians had solved problems of guidance, re-entry and production, they could reach anywhere in the United States with an ICBM launched from the Soviet Union.

It was accepted in the United States that nothing could stop the Russians from achieving an intercontinental missile with a 5,000-mile range.

Dr. von Braun was convinced that if we had kept up a stepped-up Pennemunde operation we could have had an ICBM by 1950. Obviously, if we could have had one that early, the Soviets certainly could have one eight years later. Our national composure was not helped by a NATO intelligence study that stated the Soviets had ICBMs with nuclear warheads "in operational quantities." The report said Red missile forces numbered 200,000 men at approximately 100 bases.

Principally, because of lack of information and because we thought missiles were easier to make than we now know they are, we accepted the grim picture of a massive, hard-driving Russian program far ahead of ours.

BEARDSTOWN — Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caldwell, 1216 Jefferson street, have word from their son Clarence (Babe) Caldwell of Pella, Iowa that his drug store was badly damaged by fire several days ago. He doesn't own the building which was gutted, but all of the stock belonged to him. Babe, a Beardstown high school grad, has been operating the Pella store for almost 10 years since completing his education as a pharmacist.

Barker, 614 1/2 Edwards street, are parents of a daughter Tracy Lynn, born at Schmitt Memorial hospital January 21. The little lady is the first of her sex in the Barker family in three generations. The child's grandfather, Donald Barker, who is principal at the Beard school, is an only son, and is the father of four boys.

Tracy was also something of a rarity at the hospital here, for between December 12 and January 5 there were 18 males born at Schmitt, and no females. Since the 5th there have been three female births and 5 male births.

ASHLAND CLUB SETS SHOWING OF FILM ON LINCOLN TRAIL

ASHLAND — What was Illinois like in the days when Abraham Lincoln traveled through the midwestern states? The Ashland Woman's Club will view a new film during a meeting at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the library club room. The film describes the historic and scenic highlights of the 993 miles of Lincoln Heritage Trail which winds through Illinois, Kentucky and Indiana.

The motion picture, narrated by Raymond Massey, searches out those sites where Lincoln lived, worked and traveled in the years before he became the nation's 16th president. New and old daguerreotypes, pen and ink sketches, water colors and drawings show in general what life along the trail was like in Lincoln's time.

The special showing has been arranged by the Illinois Information Service in Springfield, and will be presented by the group's American Home and Garden committee with Mrs. Emil Reiser as chairman, Mrs. John Sutherland, Mrs. Dan Clarke, Mrs. Floyd Nordsiek, Mrs. Edward Merritt, Mrs. Zeta Devlin and Mrs. Vance White.

Music has been arranged by Mrs. J. H. Douglass and will include vocal selections by Deborah Merritt and piano selections by Mrs. Douglass.

Hostesses for the event are: Mrs. Virgil Pettit and Mrs. Walter Dorsett, co-chairmen; Mrs. Tom Clemmons, Mrs. J. H. Douglass, Mrs. Vernon Edwards, Mrs. Floyd Nordsiek, Mrs. Fred Jokisch and Mrs. Paul Hammack.

BURGLARY EFFORTS END IN FAILURE AT JERSEYVILLE

JERSEYVILLE — Several business firms discovered Wednesday morning when they opened for the day that attempted break-ins had occurred some time during the night, according to reports made to Chief of Police H. H. Blackbody Jr.

When Wesley Allen, employed by East Tire Sales on North State Street, arrived at 7:40 a.m. Wednesday he discovered marks around the rear door of the building showing that an effort had been made to pry it open. An investigation was made by the police who thought that either a small pinch bar or screw driver had been used in the break-in attempt.

Chief Blackbody checked other doors along the alleyway behind the building and found a similar attempt had been made to force the door at Schroeder's TV and Appliance building on South State. Entrance was not gained at either place.

1964 Important Year For Modern Legalized Gambling In Nevada

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Modern legalized gambling in Nevada, nearing the ripe old age of 34, is showing more and more signs of growing out of a troublesome adolescence.

It is now two decades since the state took over supreme control of gambling from local governments: one decade since the state reorganized its control apparatus with the express goal of weeding out hoodlums and "other undesirables."

In some respects, 1964 was an important year: for the first time, the state closed a major casino on cheating charges, and a federal court upheld the state's authority to keep known criminals out of gambling casinos.

There still are headaches. To the continuing moral question, the state replies: "Most Nevadans believe it is better to license, tax and regulate legal gambling than to tolerate the bribery and corruption that inevitably accompany illegal gambling operations."

Critics contend profits from legal gambling in Nevada go elsewhere to finance illicit gambling, crime and vice.

Milton Keefer, chairman of the Nevada Gaming Commission, thinks Nevada gambling's image is better now than ever.

"More people are coming to recognize and accept it as they have the legalized racing in many states. I think it's gained stature and is generally recognized as a well-regulated and honest industry," says Keefer, a Las Vegas attorney and former FBI agent.

"The Gaming Control Board and the commission have never been able to establish that any sums, sizable or not, are channeled out of the state to support any illegal activity," he says.

About 30 states have some form of legalized betting, but Nevada remains the only one where it's virtually wide open — from cash bingo and football parlay cards to the classic casino games or craps, 21 and roulette.

Perhaps another sign of maturity is labor's attempt to unionize card dealers, croupiers and other casino workers. The infant union now is seeking National Labor Relations Board authority to bargain for the employees. Las Vegas casinos are resisting. Gov. Grant Sawyer, a Democrat in his second term, has stipulated the state must have ultimate control over whom a casino has on the payroll. He says this is to prevent proven cheaters from keeping their jobs through union security clauses.

Gambling carries a hefty share of the state's tax burden. Whether it's paying enough or too much is a point under study. The state is taking steps to learn just how much casinos can bear without hurting overall business and tourism.

In 1963, casinos paid $13.5 million on reported gross winnings of $269.8 million. Nevada's 2 per cent sales tax brings in more, and there are indications local governments will seek an additional 1 per cent sales tax, on a county-option basis, to help them meet demands of growing population. The state's population remains less than 500,000, but Nevada played host to an estimated 22 million tourists last year.

The supreme authority in gambling matters is the five-member Nevada Gaming Commission. Two of the five, including Keefer, are former FBI agents. The commission's investigative and enforcement agency is the three-member Nevada Gaming Control Board, under the chairmanship of Edward A. Olsen, a former newspaperman. The board's enforcement chief, Thomas J. Hill, knows the game from the inside out — as a former casino "pit boss" and supervisor.

The gaming commission puts the responsibility of running a clean house on the casino owners. Its lever is its authority to lift a casino's license at any time, for any operation considered "unsuitable."

Last April, five altered dice were found on a table at the Silver Slipper casino at Las Vegas. The casino was summarily closed by gaming officials. The three owners were charged with cheating and given a hearing. The commission revoked the owner's license.

The commission's staff also audits casino books and collects the taxes. The prime state take is a gross receipts tax levied on the winnings before anything is taken out for salaries, operating expenses or other overhead. The scale, in effect since 1955, ranges from 3 per cent for a small club to a maximum 54 per cent on operations grossing more than $1 million a year.

There also is a flat fee for each table and each slot machine. How much do casinos make? No one knows for certain, except the casino owners.

A San Francisco accounting firm recently completed a study for the state of 50 casinos, which earn 25 per cent of the reported gross winnings. It found, on the basis of reports filed with the state, that eight of the casinos were extremely profitable, nine very profitable, 21 reasonably profitable, three were on the margin, and nine were losing money.

In addition to state taxes, casinos paid $5 million to the federal government in 1963, $3.5 million to counties, and $1.5 million to cities.

Tureen of Soup Promotes Winter Warmth

Have you ever thought of welcoming friends who have dropped in on a Sunday evening to a surprise late supper of soup? A tureen of hot soup is one of the most gracious ways to and an evening warm with friendship.

Besides being chill-chasing and company-complimenting, soup is the easiest thing in the world to prepare. Canned condensed soups do all the work. All that's required of you is an imaginative extra touch to make the dish your "own". Just take your choice of expertly seasoned and extra flavorful soups for the base. With a pinch of herb, a bit of celery for crunch, any number of interesting variations can be made in a minute.

Served in a handsome tureen, the only accompaniment need be crackers . . . but, here again, make the crackers something special, too. Next time, guests stay late and the thoughts of egg yolk.

HERBED CHICKEN VEGETABLE SOUP

1 1/2 cup sliced celery
1/4 cup chopped onion
Generous dash crushed thyme
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed chicken vegetable soup
1 soup can water

In saucepan, cook celery, onion, and thyme in butter until celery is tender. Add soup and water. Heat. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

DEVILED HAM AND NUT ROUNDS

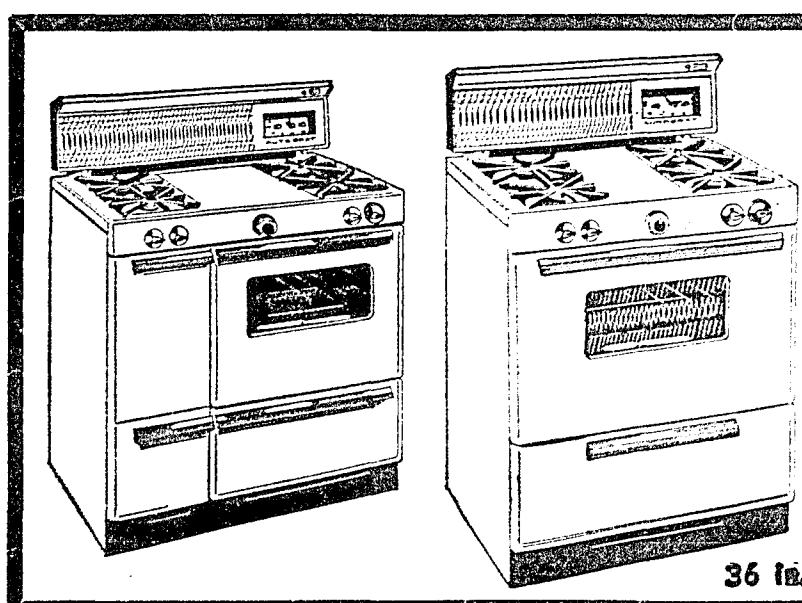

1 can (2 1/2 ounces) deviled ham
1 tablespoon finely chopped nut
6 round crackers
Sieved egg yolk

Blend deviled ham and nut. Spread on crackers; garnish with sieved egg yolk.

Johnson Discards Wide-Ranging, Live Broadcast News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's stage direction has transformed the voice of the White House.

Two of his top Cabinet officers, both appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy, did much the same thing at the State Department and the Pentagon after they took office four years ago.

And the net result is a decline in the role of the wide-open, wide-ranging news conference as a method of telling the nation what is going on in the administration.

Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara are three officials who can command a national audience from the forum of a Washington news conference, Johnson has discarded the live broadcast news conference that marked the Kennedy years.

Five times during 14 months as President, Johnson has called news conferences in Washington with a day's advance notice. That was standard procedure under Kennedy and his predecessor, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It meant that experts in foreign policy, economic affairs and other fields swelled the turnout of newsmen, and fired many of the questions.

Kennedy held his news conferences in the big State Department auditorium. Johnson has gone there only once. His standard setting is the oval office at the White House. A news conference there, called without advance notice, brings only the reporters who regularly cover the White House.

That means perhaps 50 to 60 newsmen instead of 300 or more.

All told, the White House says, Johnson has held 36 news conferences. That includes only those for which transcripts were made. Actually, there have been more, including the hike-and-talk sessions he has held with reporters on the grounds of the executive mansion, and other informal talks.

Privately, Johnson has said he wants Rusk and McNamara to meet newsmen more frequently. But both of these Cabinet officers have followed a pattern they set when they took office four years ago.

College Federation Seeks Bigger Voice In State Education

The Federation of Illinois Colleges and Universities, meeting in its 61st annual meeting on the campus of Illinois College Friday and Saturday, voted to strengthen the organization and the voice of combined independent, non-tax-supported institutions of higher education in the state.

Following the annual meeting Saturday morning, Dr. F. Joseph Mullin of Shimer College, president of the federation, told the Journal Courier that the organization's views on future positions and activities would not be made known until after an executive meeting in Chicago next Wednesday.

He said the view of the 43 member-institutions more than likely would be in a statement of the role of private colleges and universities should play in the master plan for higher education in Illinois.

"We think private non-tax supported education should have a voice in the plan," he said. With a theme of "The Responsibility of Private Higher Education in Illinois," the agenda for the annual meeting included a keynote address by Dr. Robert J. Bernard, executive director of the Association of Independent California Colleges and Universities.

Lyman Glenn, secretary and associate director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, reported on Illinois' "Master Plan" for higher education.

Many educators in Illinois feel the "Master Plan," as proposed for the state, places too much emphasis on state-supported universities and proposed branches coupled with a junior college system.

Presidents and deans from 31 private institutions at the meeting discussed means of insuring that in planning higher education for the state there would be taken into account what private colleges and universities are doing and plan to do in the future.

The members who met in Jacksonville were sworn to secrecy concerning the federation's views of the "Master Plan" and other proposals for higher education until after the Chicago news conference.

Officers of the federation are: Dr. Mullin, president; Dr. K. Richard Johnson of National College of Education, vice-president; and Dr. Arlo L. Schilling of North Central College, secretary-treasurer.

New members on the executive committee are Dr. George W. Beadle, chancellor of the University of Chicago, and Very Rev. John R. Cortelyou, C.M., president of DePaul University.

Incumbents on the executive committee are Dr. Ira W. Langston, president of Eureka College, and Robert W. Mulligan, S. J., vice president of Loyola University.

CHURCHILL BURIED IN CHURCHYARD AT BLADON

some two hours before the service began. A crowd of more than 100, some in top hats, others bareheaded, was waiting. Inside, there already was much activity. Ushers in morning coats and striped trousers were guiding guests to their appointed seats.

Officers of Britain's crack regiments — the Coldstream Guards, the Grenadier Guards and others — already were in position, resplendent in dress uniforms with long scarlet or blue coats, trousers with broad red trimming down the side. Occasionally a sword clanked against a seat.

The official guests began to arrive at 9:40: Warren, Harriman and Ambassador David K. Bruce for the United States. The representatives of France and the Soviet Union came at the same time.

President Charles de Gaulle of France and Gen. Eisenhower took seats under the vast dome of the cathedral. De Gaulle was wearing his brigadier general's uniform.

Visiting royalty, King Baudouin of Belgium, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, King Frederik of Denmark, King Olav of Norway and King Constantine of Greece, took seats in a front row near the catafalque.

The catafalque, about five feet high, was covered with a swathe of black velvet trimmed in silver.

Around the catafalque in six carved ebony candlesticks eight feet high were lighted candles, each five feet long and three inches in diameter. The catafalque rested on a dull red rug.

Television spotlights and cameras high up in the walls of the nave were directed at the area immediately under the dome where the catafalque rested. The whole atmosphere of the many-arched cathedral with its stone carvings and religious murals bespoke the renaissance.

Opposite the royal guests were many of Britain's noble families. The brilliant uniforms of the guardsmen were everywhere.

The strictest royal protocol was observed. Members of the royal family "not being royal highnesses" arrived first. Then came Queen Elizabeth, the queen mother and members of the royal family "being royal highnesses."

Queen Elizabeth II, her husband, Prince Philip, and Prince Charles were last to arrive. They reached the foot of the steps at the south door at 10:35 a.m. They were ushered first into the chapel of St. Michael and St. George near the door.

The funeral procession had just arrived before the cathedral. The 12 official pallbearers formed up to accompany the coffin into the cathedral. These included such warriors as Field Marshal Earl Alexander and Admiral of the Fleet Lord Mountbatten, both of whom had fought under Sir Winston.

And there were the politicians among the pallbearers, Earl Adee, 82, the former prime minister whose Labor party defeated Churchill's Conservatives; the Earl of Avon, the former Sir Anthony Eden who succeeded Churchill as prime minister; Sir Robert Menzies, prime minister of Australia, and former Conservative Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

The eight-man bearer party of the brigade of guards lifted the heavy oak coffin on their shoulders and carried it to the catafalque.

The service was led by the dean of the cathedral, the Very Rev. Walter R. Matthews. He read the call to prayer, saying: "Brethren, we are assembled here, as representing the people of this land and of the British Commonwealth, to join in prayer on the occasion of the burial of a great man who has rendered memorable service to his country and to the cause of freedom."

After a prayer, the organ boomed out the stirring music to the lines "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord," — the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Many wept.

The canon of the cathedral then read the lesson from 1 Cor. 15:20, following which the congregation rose and sang "Fight the Good Fight With All Thy Might." Another choice of Churchill's.

The archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, led a prayer and greeted the queen on her arrival, but was not actually in charge of the service. This is the prerogative of the dean of the cathedral.

Also present at the funeral were the archbishops of York, Armagh and Wales and the primate of Scotland. The Roman Catholic archbishop of Westminster, Dr. John Heenan, soon to become a cardinal, attended the service.

As the funeral cortege moved away from the cathedral for the trip by river and hearse to Waterloo Station, a fleet of royal limousines drew up at the south door of the church.

Queen Elizabeth and her party were driven to Buckingham Palace. There the queen was hostess at a luncheon for visiting royalty, Commonwealth prime ministers and representatives of France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

By coincidence, this was the anniversary of the birth of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Sir Winston's friend and wartime collaborator, and of the rise to power of his archenemy, Adolf Hitler.

The coffin was borne to the foot of the Tower of London and placed aboard a navy launch for the mile and a half journey up the Thames to Festival Pier.

As the launch breasted the river, a line of cranes on the river side lowered their booms in salute.

From Festival Pier the coffin was taken to Waterloo Station for the trip to Bladon. The locomotive was named "Winston Churchill."

Crowds waited at stations along the way. Men doffed their hats as the train passed.

The service at Bladon was brief and simple with only members of the family present. Sir Winston had chosen his grave. He had asked to be buried at Bladon beside the graves of his father and mother, which he visited faithfully every year. The little churchyard is within sight of Blenheim Palace, the magnificent structure where Sir Winston was born a little more than 90 years ago.

Lady Churchill, 79, had asked that the burial be strictly private.

The brief burial service was conducted by the Rev. John James, rector of St. Martin. Bearers from Sir Winston's old regiment, the Irish Hussars, carried the coffin the short distance from the churchyard gate to the grave.

Lady Churchill followed the coffin to the grave on the arm of her son, Randolph. The Rev. Mr. James read the Church of England burial service. The Union Jack which had lain on the coffin since it first lay in state in Westminster Hall Wednesday was removed by the Hussars and the coffin was lowered into the grave.

Lady Churchill thanked the Rev. Mr. James and the party returned to the funeral train at the station. Soon after the family left, villagers began to walk through the cemetery.

They saw a grave covered with wreaths — from the queen, from President Tito of Yugoslavia, from President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and others. But the one which touched the visitors most in the gathering dusk was from Lady Churchill. It said simply: "To my darling Winston, Clemmie."

In 14 Maryland counties and in Baltimore City.

By noon, southern Maryland measured up to four inches of snow. In westernmost Garrett County a three-inch topping thickened the 10-inch blanket that formed Friday.

State police reported traffic had been reduced to a crawl in Kentucky. The snowfall ranged up to four inches in Louisville and Owensboro. Drifts built up on rural roads.

West Virginia had two to 18 inches of snow on the ground when dark clouds began to unload more.

Deep snow coated the northern section of New York state, but the skies cleared. Bitter cold imparted further realism to the arctic scene.

The snow exceeded a foot in depth in Mexico and Pulaski in Oswego County, N.Y.

Another rainy day dogged the Pacific Northwest. Rivers went out of their banks again, washing out roads, bridges and dams and stranding hundreds.

A landslide on the Columbia River sent a wave over part of Puget Island near Cathlamet, Wash. A man was killed and a woman injured.

The mercury shivered down below the zero notch early Saturday from Maine westward to the northern Great Plains, and millions of Northerners endured another day of piercing cold.

Temperatures pulled down to 29 in Hibbing, Minn., -28 in Fargo, N.D., -24 in Atlantic, Iowa, and Madison, Wis., -19 in Old Town, Maine, and -16 in Elmira, N.Y.

The 12 below reading in Albany, N.Y., tied a record for the date that was set 67 years ago.

Floods, Slides Hit Northwest, Three Lose Lives

In Utah, 300 persons were stranded for the sixth day at the ski center of Alta by a heavy snowfall which triggered avalanches and blocked roads. All were warm and well.

The snow at Alta is the heaviest in 15 years with 13 feet on the slopes.

Avalanches plagued other sections of Utah and southern Idaho. One man was killed when his tractor was buried in a snowslide near the Idaho town of Cascade. Norval Fleetwood, about 45, was clearing a mountain road when the slide hit.

A Utah man making a snow survey was luckier. Buried four hours by an avalanche, Robert Doty, 28, of Logan, was found unharmed when a member of a search party sat down to rest and heard Doty's faint cries.

Thirty-five men with long poles trapped the avalanche area after Doty's snow vehicle was buried in the mountains east of Farmington, 15 miles north of Salt Lake City.

In the eastern Oregon town of La Grande some 200 homes were evacuated as the Grande Ronde River spilled into the northwest section of the city.

Civil Defense officials said an additional 1,000 homes must be evacuated if the flood worsens. However, Civil Defense officials said the river appeared to be dropping.

Oregon Gov. Mark O. Hatfield said that National Guard units had been called out for flood duty at La Grande and at two other eastern Oregon towns — Pendleton and Milton-Freewater.

The National Guard also is on duty in western Oregon's Clackamas County which also has suffered extensive flood damage.

The Willamette River was rising in Portland.

Police identified the latest slide victim as Holcomb Gabrielson, 45, a Puget Island dairy farmer.

GERMAN, TOUCHED BY U.S. TRAGEDY, SENDS HIS GIFT

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Monday, the gift was quite modest.

In terms of concern, the gift was great.

The Wichita Beacon this week received $1.05 in uncanceled U.S. stamps from young Horst Mahnk of Hamburg, Germany.

But he was sending them — all the ready wealth he had — to help someone touched by the tragedy two weeks ago when an Air Force jet tanker crashed in a snowslide near the Idaho town of Cascade. Norval Fleetwood, about 45, was clearing a mountain road when the slide hit.

A Utah man making a snow survey was luckier. Buried four hours by an avalanche, Robert Doty, 28, of Logan, was found unharmed when a member of a search party sat down to rest and heard Doty's faint cries.

Five Children, Mother Perish As Home Burns

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Six members of a Green Bay family — a 27-year-old mother and her five children — perished in a fire that spread through their home with explosive fury Saturday.

The only survivor, Eugene Kagerbauer, 29, the husband and father of the victims, was kept under heavy sedation in St. Mary's Hospital where he was being treated for shock, cuts and minor burns. He escaped by leaping through a second-story bedroom window.

The dead, all victims of smoke inhalation, were Mrs. Claudia Kagerbauer and her children, Julie 7, Christine 6, Paul 5, Michele 4, and Kim 2.

An unidentified passerby saw flames leaping from the two-story frame house, ran to a fire station a block away and turned in the alarm at 7:30 a.m. as the temperatures hovered at 17 degrees below zero.

When he returned, he told authorities, the house had "exploded" in flames and Kagerbauer, clad only in underwear, was rolling from a porch roof to the ground after crashing through a window.

Jacks Capture Tourney Title In Easy 78-53 Romp

Routt Holds Off Winchester Rally For 59-51 6th Victory

A strong fourth quarter by Jacks during the quarter, the Routt Rockets proved too much for the Winchester Wildcats. The Wildcats only had two free throws as the locals walked off with a 78-53 victory on their home court Saturday night.

The Wildcats came out firing in the second half and cut the first four minutes of play but were unable to move the ball against the zone defense of Routt. The zone caused Winchester four turnovers in the first two minutes. Routt took advantage of the situation and increased its lead to nine points midway through the period.

The Wildcats were not to be left behind as they fought back to within one, 40-39, at 1:45 of the third quarter. Routt took possession and held until 0:02 when a lay-up by captain Lee McGinnis hit four of six bas-

MacMurray Defeated In Overtime, 98-87

MT. PLEASANT, Iowa — Iowa Wesleyan tripped MacMurray in overtime here Saturday night to send the Highlanders down to defeat for the tenth time this year, 98-87.

After rallying in the second half to tie the score, the Clans missed two shots in the final seconds of regulation play to send the contest into the extra period. Mac tallied the first four points in the extra frame, but the hosts roared back to go ahead and lead the win from the free throw line.

MacMurray was down by substantial margins early in the game, trailing 18-9 and 36-27 at various times. Led by Harry Matheny, who scored all 14 of his points in the opening twenty minutes, the Clan whittled the Tiger lead to the seven point intermission spread, 42-35.

Reserve man Bob Gay came off the Highlander bench to spark the Mac rally in the second half as he tallied all of his 11 points in the second period. With 1:40 to play and Wesleyan up by an 81-77 margin, Fred Lewis hit a pair of free throws and Tom Zurkammer scored on a jumper to knot the count at 81-all with 42 seconds remaining.

The hosts brought the ball downcourt, missed a shot, and Mac got the rebound, but the two shots from the floor went away as time ran out.

John Cavanah led Wesleyan in the extra period, tallying 7 markers on a pair of buckets and three charity throws, and took overall game honors with 26 points. Guard Dave Lopez added 24 and Jeff Trickett pitched in 21 to add to the Tiger cause.

MacMurray had balanced scoring, with six men hitting in double figures. Matheny took honors with 14, followed by Zurkammer and Jim Hargrave with 13 each, Dennis Beard and Bryan Phegley with 12 each, followed by Gay's 11. Lewis, who fouled out in the overtime, chipped in 8.

The win gives the hosts a 12-3 record for the year, and MacMurray is now 4-10. The Highlanders will return home for an encounter with Western Illinois on Tuesday, and the Clan will be out to avenge a 75-72 loss in the season opener at Macomb.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tom McKenna led a second-half rally that enabled third-ranked St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania to pull away from a stubborn Xavier team to a 93-78 basketball victory Saturday night.

The Hawks never trailed after the first basket and led 44-35 at halftime. The Musketeers closed the gap to three points with 5:33 left.

Then, with the score 72-69 and Xavier in possession, the Hawks stole the ball and McKenna scored a lay-up that widened St. Joseph's margin. He scored a total of 14 points in 11 minutes of play.

It was the seventh consecutive victory for the Hawks and raised their record to 17-1. Xavier is now 7-10 for the season.

Xavier's Jim Hengebold scored 27 points and teammate Bryan Williams 21.

Carroll started off the Winchester rally as the frame ended.

In the quarter Routt only got off nine shots but made good on four. The Rocket defense forced their opponents to shoot from the outside as Winchester attempted 22 field goals, hitting on seven.

The fourth quarter was Routt all the way. The two teams traded baskets for the first two minutes. With 5:45 remaining in the game, Routt surged out of reach running the score from 46-43 to 57-43 with 2:30 left. During the drive the Rockets were superb on the boards and recorded four tip-ins. Senior Bill Templin hauled down seven rebounds for the Routt quiet during the final frame.

Routt substituted in the closing minutes as the Wildcats finished the scoring with an eight point flurry.

McGinnis was the game-high scorer with 23 points, chiefly followed by Carroll who tallied 19. High man for Winchester was Gordon Spencer with eight baskets and two free throws for a total of 16 points.

Pekin Nips Galesburg By 79-72

GALESBURG (AP) — Top-ranked Pekin, Illinois' defending prep champion, remained undefeated Saturday night with a 79-72 victory over Galesburg, the state's No. 2 team.

Galesburg held a 9-0 lead before the Chinks began making headway to move into a 41-31 halftime lead. Galesburg crept within two points at 54-52 but never could regain the lead.

Dave Golden topped Pekin with 23 points and Mike Davis had 16 for Galesburg as both teams displayed balance with both having five players in double figures.

Pekin is now 10-0 for the season and Galesburg has a 12-1 mark.

Crothers' Win In 600 Yard Run Features Games

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Crothers came from last place to a sparkling victory in the 600-yard run in the Boston A.A. Games Saturday night, finishing one-tenth of a second short of the indoor at 1:09.3.

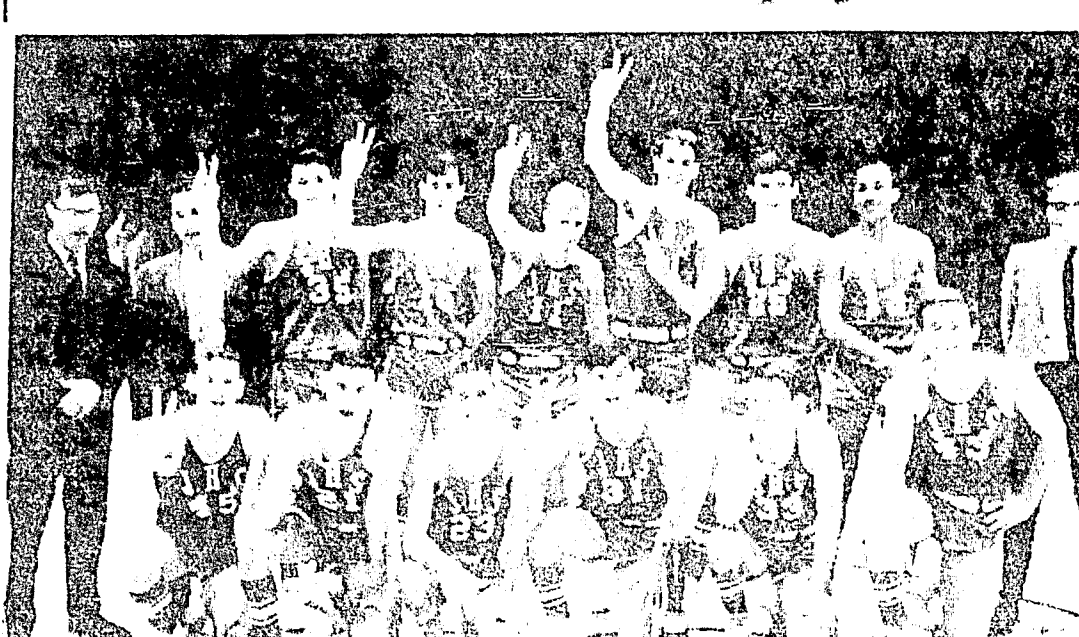

It was the third triumph in as many days for the 24-year-old Toronto pharmacist and his sixth without loss this indoor season.

Earlier, Cortland Gary of the U.S. Naval Academy pulled a major upset in beating a veteran field in 5.5 seconds in the 45-yard high hurdles.

"It wears a little thin, three nights in a row," said Crothers, who won the 600 in Toronto Friday night and the half-mile in New York Thursday.

Crothers, who now has won five cup races in eight days, let Tommy Farrell of New York, a U.S. Olympian, set the fast pace for two laps, bolted from last in the field of four with one lap to go, caught Farrell with 200 yards to go and won by about four yards.

Then There Were 3

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — They stood side by side, the three of them to pay their final respects Saturday to a friend and former teammate. Together, they were the Four Horsemen.

Harry Stuhldreher, the quarterback of that famed Notre Dame backfield of the 1920s, is gone.

A solemn high requiem mass was sung at St. Paul's Cathedral near the University of Pittsburgh's Cathedral of Learning in the city's Oakland section. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

Fullback Elmer Layden and halfbacks Don Miller and Jim Crowley, the other members of the backfield that was written into football annals by the late Grantland Rice, were honorary pallbearers.

About 500 persons attended the services on a cold day under a brilliantly sunny sky, not like that of which Rice wrote after the Notre Dame-Army game in 1924:

"Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again."

The Four Horsemen is a biblical allusion to the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse—famine, pestilence, destruction and death.

Stuhldreher, 63, a U.S. Steel Corp. executive, died last Tuesday in West Penn Hospital where he underwent surgery Jan. 14.

Other honorary pallbearers included the surviving four of the Seven Mules—the linemen on the 1924 team. They are tackle Rip Miller and Joe Bach, end Chuck Collins and center Adam Walsh.

Redbirds Claim 15th Win, 76-52

VIRGINIA — Despite a 31 point performance, 16 of them in the fourth quarter, by Griggsville forward Phil Hannant, the Virginia Redbirds walked off with a 76-52 triumph in a non-conference contest here Saturday night.

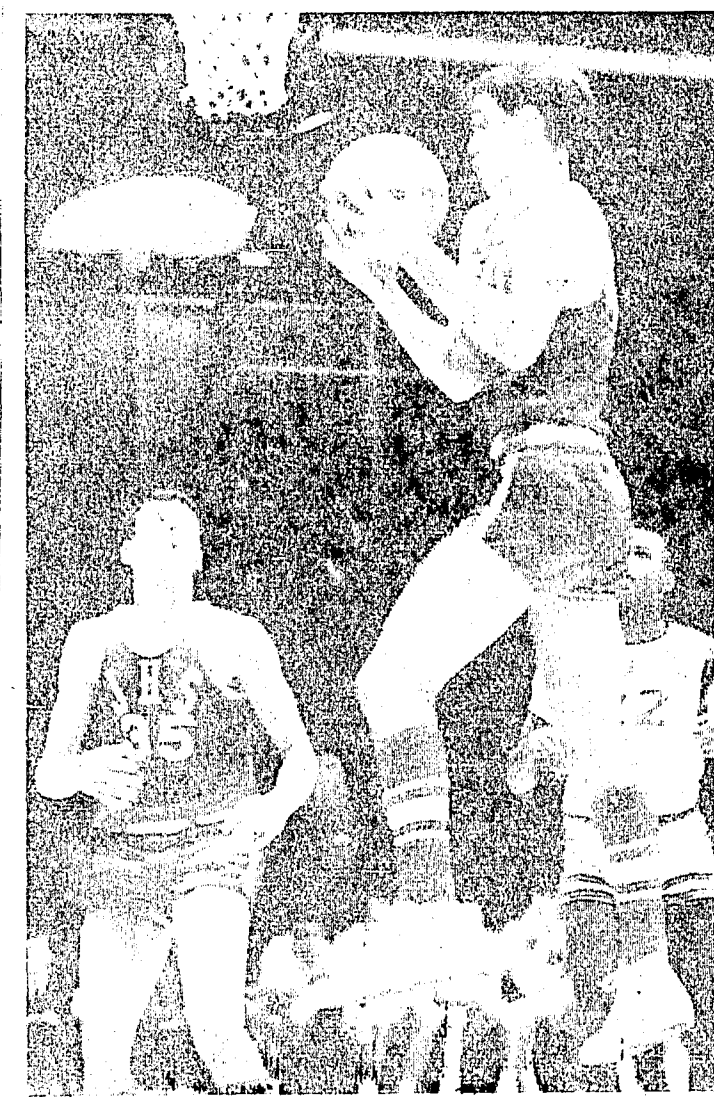

The Redbirds came out with a balanced attack, putting four men in double figures. Both teams hit well from the field with the Tornados out-shooting the Virginia 52% to 50%. The game saw good defense on both sides, but Griggsville was unable to hit from the outside with consistency.

The victory was the Redbirds' 15th compared to one setback.

MARQUETTE UPSETS ST. JOHN'S 78-50

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette's scrambling, inexperienced Warriors shocked seventh-ranked St. John's of New York 78-50 Saturday night before a crowd of 7,070 at the Arena.

The Warriors, playing their first season under Coach Al McGuire, took command virtually from the opening tipoff and led all the way in belting the Redmen, who had piled up eight straight victories.

Tom Flynn put Marquette in front with an eight-foot jump shot after 45 seconds of play. Marquette stormed to a 26-9 lead in the first 14 minutes, then McGuire put in his second unit, which outscored St. John's by an 8-1 margin in 2 1/2 minutes and then let the starters come back to go on to a 43-20 halftime lead.

The Warriors hit on 16 of 36 field goal attempts while limiting St. John's to 7 of 24 in the first 20 minutes. The Warriors also controlled the boards by 26-12 and wound up with an overwhelming 57-35 advantage for the game.

Both Clubs Red Hot

Lincolnwood averaged an unbelievable 83% of their attempts in the frame to East Peoria's almost as hot 70% on seven of ten tries. For the half the Lancers turned in a 68% clip to East Peoria's 53% rate.

Bone And Whitaker Shine, Lancers 3rd

By BUFORD GREEN
Jacksonville had too much of everything Saturday night, as the highly-rated Crimsons rolled to a 78-53 count over Hannibal to capture their own four-team tournament championship.

The Crimsons overcame some first-quarter raggedness, then romped from there on.

Lincolnwood's Steve Bergman paced his Lancers to a 79-66 victory in the opening game of the night and third place. Bergman threw in 30 points in a top offensive performance.

Steve Bone hit 25 points and Creston Whitaker 20 for the winning Crimsons, as 11 players scored for Jacksonville.

After being held to a 13-13 tie in the opening eight minutes, the Crimsons jumped in to command with the first eight points in the second frame and were off and running.

Jacksonville kept increasing their margin and by halftime the Crimsons held a 37-23 difference. The spread quickly grew to 70 in the third frame.

After another scoring spurt by Bone and Whitaker in the third stanza the Crimsons were never threatened.

The game was tied four times in the opening quarter, and Hannibal held two four-point leads. The Pirates tried holding the ball the final 2:30 of the frame but buckets by Dennis Sergeant and Bone deadlocked the score at the end.

The second round was an entirely different story, as Bone hit a bucket and four free throws and Whitaker a drive before Hannibal scored in the period.

After a Hannibal bucket the Crimsons ripped off the next six points, four by Dennis Weghoff and three by Whitaker, for a sizeable 27-15 difference. Whitaker added two more buckets and a pair of free tosses and Ron Coleman tipped in a pair for a 37-23 spread at intermission.

Both clubs shot a respectable 46% rate the first half.

Bone, Whitaker Take Over
The third quarter belonged to Bone and Whitaker. Bone scored the first seven, Weghoff squeezed in a bucket, and Whitaker garnered the next eight in a row while Hannibal managed only three baskets. By then the score had increased to 53-31 with two minutes left in the frame.

Weghoff and Coleman hit buckets through the Hannibal press near the end of the quarter to offset a pair of outside shots by the Pirates' Howard Jackson to keep the count the same at 57-37 entering the last eight minutes.

Bone ended his night's scoring with the first six points of the fourth quarter and a 63-39 difference. Whitaker hit one more bucket before fouling out and Gary Ginder cannot four points in the remaining time for the final 78-53 score.

For the game Jacksonville hit an even 50% from the field on 28 of 56 attempts, to Hannibal's 35% rate. The Crimsons held a 40-30 difference off the boards.

The game was slowed by the calling of 45 fouls, 23 on Jacksonville.

Bergman Sparkles
Lincolnwood's Bergman broke open what had been a tight game in the fourth quarter, as the 6-0 jumping jack poured in 14 points in the stanza and brought third place to the Lancers.

Lincolnwood had actually led from the first quarter on but East Peoria rallied back into contention in the second half. The losing Raiders came within five several times in the second half, and twice in the fourth quarter, only to fall victim to Bergman's hot outside shooting and drives down the middle.

The lead changed hands nine straight times in the opening round, but buckets by Steve Gerlach and a three-point play by Dale Arter broke the quarter open. By the end of the frame Lincolnwood has amassed a 24-15 spread.

Gerlach, Bergman and Arter continued to control the scrap. Lucas, c... ping, fast-breaking Lincolnwood offense in the second quarter and the Lancers increased their difference to 40-39 by intermission.

Both Clubs Red Hot
The two clubs hit a blazing percentage of their shots in the first half, especially in the opening quarter. Lincolnwood averaged an unbelievable 83% of their attempts in the frame to East Peoria's almost as hot 70% on seven of ten tries. For the half the Lancers turned in a 68% clip to East Peoria's 53% rate.

Gerlach and David Foltson took over in the third quarter as Bergman was shut out after getting 14 in the first half. Midway in the stanza East Peoria's Ken Conrad and Dan Abel got hot and the Raiders chipped away at the difference. Lincolnwood clung to a 57-52 edge at the close of the chapter.

Bergman controlled all the distance star now running for the Chicago Track Club, won the two-mile race in 9:14.7.

USGA Changes Form Of Three Tournies

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Golf Association changed the forms of three of its biggest tournaments Saturday, partly in recognition of the established facts of slow play and television schedules.

It also gave duifers a possible out on the pesky rule about hitting the flagstick with the ball and increased prize money for both men and women professionals.

The amateur championship, a match play event since its beginning in 1895, becomes a 72-hole stroke play tournament. The Open championship and the Women's Open, always medal play events, will be stretched out to four days, eliminating the trying two rounds on Saturday.

Since 1926 the Open has been played in three days, except on rare occasions when weather interfered, with 36 holes the last day.

Prize money for this year's Open, to be played June 17-20 at the Bellerive Country Club, St. Louis, was increased to $125,000 with $25,000 going to the winner — or the leading professional.

The Women's Open at the Atlantic City Country Club, Northfield, N.J., July 1-4 will have $20,000 in prize money with $4,000 for first place.

Expanded Program

While television was mentioned only casually, the report read at the meeting by USGA Executive Director Joseph C. Dey, Jr., pointed out that playing the last two rounds of the Open on a Saturday and a Sunday makes possible an expanded television program.

The new Amateur format also is suitable for television although there are no plans for televising this year's tournament Sept. 15-18 at the Southern Hills Club, Tulsa, Okla.

Last year the USGA received $79,591 for broadcasting rights to its tournaments but only the Open was televised.

The slowness of the players in getting through 18 holes in the Open was one of the principal reasons for the changes. Last year when Ken Venturi staggered home through the heat at Washington's Congressional Club to win the top prize of $17,000, he had been on the course more than eight hours playing 36 holes.

Best Test Of Skill

The changes in the Amateur were motivated by "the belief that stroke play is consistently the most conclusive test of skill" and by the fact that it keeps a large field in competition throughout the tournament.

The starting field for the Amateur will be 150 players with a cut after 36 holes to the 50 low scorers and ties.

After an unsuccessful experiment of eliminating the rule which calls for a two-stroke penalty if an unattended flagstick is struck by a ball played from the putting green or from within 20 yards of the hole, the USGA reinstated it last year. Now it has approved an optional local rule which calls for the penalty only if the stroke is played from within the flagstick's length of the hole.

The 20-yard rule will apply in all USGA tournaments, but the option recognizes that in most ordinary club play caddies aren't available to remove the stick so the player has to do it himself before hitting his shot.

Wildcats Slip By State 77-75

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Walt Kozicki's layup with six seconds to play gave Northwestern a 77-75 Big Ten basketball victory over Michigan State Saturday.

It was the second Wildcat victory over Michigan State in the final seconds this season. Last Saturday, Jim Cummings' basket with four seconds to play gave Northwestern a 76-75 victory over Michigan State.

Michigan State took a 5-0 lead but Northwestern erased it and twice led by 14 points in the first half. Trailing 42-28, Michigan State roared back to cut the halftime lead to 42-40.

Northwestern took a 54-44 lead in the second half before Marcus Sanders, the game's top scorer with 28 points, turned in a hot hand and lifted the Spartans into a 57-37 tie. From then on it was touch-and-go with Sanders scoring in the final seconds to tie the game at 75-75 before Kozicki's winning goal.

Jim Pitts topped Northwestern with 22 points and helped the Wildcats control the boards despite a weak knee which was taped heavily.

IN GOLF FINALS

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Bob Frayne of Brockton, Mass., and Chuck Malchaski of Addison, Ill., won two matches each Saturday and will meet Sunday in the finals of the PGA Match Play Golf Tournament.

Lincolnwood Takes Third

Lincolnwood's Steve Bergman and East Peoria's Larry Hallam jump for a loose ball at the free throw circle in the consolation game at the Bowl Saturday night. Bergman scored 30 points for the high in the two-day four-team tourney.

Blueboy Rally Falls Short As Culver Edges IC, 74-67

Two free throws by Dave Little with 3:00 remaining put the Culver-Stockton Wildcats ahead to stay as they defeated the Illinois College Blueboys by the score of 74-65.

The game was nip and tuck throughout, the second half as both teams battled for the lead. Down seven points at the half, Illinois College bounced back with four points by freshman Pete Gallatin, and four by Harold Kund, making it 36-35.

Bruce Condill tossed in a free throw to give the Wildcats a two-margin before Jim Bruner tied up the game for the first time at 37-37, with two minutes gone in the half.

Culver then regained the lead until Kund dumped in a basket after seven minutes of play, putting the Blueboys ahead for the first time 47-46. The lead changed hands nine times during the next ten minutes before Little finally put Culver ahead 62-61.

The Blueboys enjoyed a short-lived two-point lead at opening tip and then fell behind for the remainder of first half. The Wildcats once acquired a nine-point margin, lost 4 just before the half, and finally regained it at the final gun after a close second half.

Kund, graduating at mid-year, played his last game for the Blueboys. Harold has been the team's leader in both the scoring and rebounding departments this season. Coach Bill Merris will be looking for a new man to fill the center position next week as the team begins its second semester of play.

Freshman guard Gallatin turned in an outstanding game as he scored 16 in the IC effort. Regular forward Bruner was high with 17. Culver-Stockton edged the Blueboys in the percentage department 39 to 34.5.

Former Champion Louis Picking Chualo To Defeat Patterson

EDITOR'S NOTE—Joe Louis, former world heavyweight champion and one of the greats of all time in boxing history, hereby gives his analysis of the Floyd Patterson-George Chualo 12-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden on Monday.

By JOE LOUIS

Former Heavyweight Champion

For The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — I have fought a lot of fights and written about just as many. I have been right and I have been wrong, both in and out of the ring.

Most fights are more or less easy to judge but I'm having trouble with the Floyd Patterson-George Chualo fight that takes place in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

I've gone on record as picking Patterson in eight rounds. I'm not changing my prediction. However, I've got to say that this fight is a fight with a lot of "ifs."

I picked Chualo because he is stronger than Patterson and can punch with either hand. I've seen him and talked with him and he's in fine shape physically and mentally.

Mental Side Important

That mentally is awful important to a fighter, particularly to one like Chualo. There have been fights he's been in which he should have won easily but he just couldn't get going. That's in the mind. He has been moody. But he tells me that's all over with.

Now let's take Floyd Patterson. He is proud man. He has a style that's entirely his own. We call it the "peek-a-boo." He has a great weapon in his left hand and his lunging jab is one of the best. He has great speed with those hands and that makes him feel he can control a fight against anyone. He tried it twice with Sonny Liston and got flattened in one round both times.

Will Not Back Away

Patterson has said that he will not fight a backing away fight. He says that he will carry the fight to Chualo because he feels that he is faster, better and more experienced. Actually he doesn't know how to back up. If he chooses to fight Chualo, he'll be fighting Chualo's fight. That's exactly what Chualo is hoping for. And this will be great for the fight fan, if not for Patterson.

Illini Score 101-87 Edge Over Irish

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois broke loose in the last 12 minutes with a 10-point spree that cooled off Notre Dame and launched a 101-87 victory Saturday night. Top-ranked UCLA crumbled Loyola of Chicago 85-72 in the opener of the Chicago Stadium basketball doubleheader before 16,746 fans.

Until Bogie Redmon, Jim Vopicka and Don Freeman uncorked baskets while the Irish remained blanked in a surge that gave the Illini a 73-63 bulge, the game had been close.

Notre Dame, trailing 49-44 at halftime, never caught up but came within one point of closing the gap three times before the Illinois burst.

The victory left Illinois with an 11-3 season record and Notre Dame with 9-7.

Freeman made 12 points in the first half then bagged 16 in the second while Skip Thoren was held to eight in the finale after getting 17 in the first.

This offset the shooting power of the Irish concentrated on Rod Reed and Jay Miller. Reed wound up with 27 points and Miller 25.

Miller and Reed kept Notre Dame within reach until 12 minutes remained. At that time, Illinois was leading 64-63.

Then Redmon hit two quick baskets, and Vopicka and Freeman kept the pace hot to put the Illini into a lead that Notre Dame could not attack. Redmon scored a total of 19 points.

The victory atoned for an 87-82 UCLA loss to Iowa here Friday night and left the Bruins with a 14-2 mark for the season. It was accomplished without the services of ace scorer Keith Erickson, who sat out with a pulled groin muscle.

Loyola forged a 35-33 edge at intermission as Jim Coleman pumped 15 points in a tug-o-war that had the lead traded 15 times and the score locked seven times.

At the

HOLLAND'S FINEST—Joost Sluis (l) and Harry Hofmann Jr., of Hofmann Florists in Jacksonville, check one of the Van Zanten azaleas at the greenhouse on South Diamond Saturday. Joost is the midwestern salesman of Van Zanten, one of the largest exporters of tulip bulbs in the world. The Hofmann Florists account is one of the oldest Van Zanten has in the United States.

Joost Top Bulb Salesman

3rd Member Of Family From Holland

"Ust call me Joe. It is easier than saying Joost." Joost, pronounced Yoost, is Joost Sluis II of Enkhuisen, Holland.

At 28, he is the third generation of his family to come to the United States as a representative of Holland's flower business.

His grandfather, associated with Sluis Brothers Seed company, sold flower seeds here starting before World War I.

Now Joost has returned, but unlike his father and grandfather, he is in the bulb business — tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, and azaleas plants.

His company, Van Zanten Brothers Inc., exports 40 million tulip bulbs in two months to all corners of the world and are acknowledged as one of the largest exporters of tulip bulbs in the world.

Joost is one of 30 Van Zanten salesmen, six of whom work in the United States. Four of the Dutchmen stay here, while Joost and an associate cover an assigned area of the country for six months.

Joost is in charge of five midwestern states, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan. He begins his travels in October and returns to Holland around April 1.

"I take orders for bulbs in 'dis country, 'vich are shipped from Holland in August," he explained in his heavy, but pleasant Dutch accent.

Wilhelm Becomes Bill

He kidded that like all foreign names, Joe could be excused as an extraction of Joost.

"It is 'ust like Wilhelm. Many of our salesmen when they come here go by the name of Bill, because it is easier for you to say."

But, even with the oohs and dahs, Joost is easily understood, because he has worked hard to learn "Americanese."

In high school, he studied French, German and English, beside Dutch. "In a small country such as ours, you have to know these other languages because people who speak them are all around you."

While working in a greenhouse for Van Zanten Brothers, one day Joost decided he wanted to come to America and sell.

William Hodges Dies Saturday

MT. STERLING — William Hodges, 75, of Mt. Sterling died at 7:15 a.m. Saturday at the White Nursing Home. He was born in Schuyler County, Nov. 5, 1875, a son of David and Nancy Jane Conrad Hodges. He is survived by several cousins.

The body was removed to the Rounds Funeral Chapel where services will be held Tuesday at 10 a.m. Burial will be in Hughes cemetery in Schuyler County. Visitation will be Monday afternoon and evening.

JIM'S BIG VALUE MARKET
1203 W. Walnut

Because he was a bit rusty on the language, Joost said he knew he would have to brush up on his English before Van Zanten would send him here as a salesman.

"What is the best way to learn the American language?" Joost asked, "come to the place where they speak it."

He worked with the Burpee Seed Company in Philadelphia for a year, returning to Holland in 1961, with a working knowledge of "Americanese."

Traveler
In five months, Joost will travel 30,000 miles calling on florists such as Harry Hofmann Jr., of Hofmann Florists in Jacksonville.

And how is the flower bulb business?

"Good," Joost replied, "Real good."

He explained that Germany was probably the largest market for the Holland flower business.

"In Europe, flowers are an old custom. They are sold on the streets. Every Sunday it is common to see people out buying fresh, cut flowers, but Americans are getting better."

He estimated there were at least 200 bulb salesmen in the United States representing Dutch firms.

"All except our azaleas are raised in Holland. The azaleas are grown in the U.S. headquarters of Van Zanten at Lyden, Washington and are shipped to florists in October within five days," he related.

He noted that the two varieties of (early and late) tulips were grown on 400 acres of ground in Holland and are shipped at one time.

Of the 4000 varieties of tulips, Van Zanten handles about 300 to 400, but can order any of the other varieties.

New varieties of tulips are being developed every day, Joost confided, but it takes at least three years before any stock can be built up for a market.

"Then sometimes a competitor has developed a better bulb and you are right back where you began," he noted.

Dutch flower companies are known to be pretty particular about choosing their salesmen, and if you ever meet Joost, you'll know in a minute he's tops.

News From Denver

Louis Foster, Jacksonville postman residing at 1201 South East street, worked for a year in Denver some 20 years ago and since then he has kept posted on the place by taking the Sunday edition of the ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS.

Last Sunday's issue had two illustrated stories about people from this area; "the first I've ever seen in the Denver paper," Foster said as he kindly brought it to the JOURNAL COURIER office Friday.

The story of a Denver policeman, a native of Bluffs, who was shot and killed while pursuing an automobile thief, occupied the entire front page of the NEWS, which is published in tabloid format. The second story was about a man, born in the Concord neighborhood, celebrating his 100th birthday and "still winking at the girls."

He Was The ALL Of My Life

On Thursday night, (Jan. 22) less than 24 hours after her policeman-husband had been slain in a dark Denver alley, Mrs. Paul Major took pen in hand to describe his life.

Her simple testament reflects the deep love she felt for her husband of 16 years and the father of her two children, and the quiet courage with which she has borne her tragic loss.

Mrs. Major wrote about her husband for the benefit of Dr. Raymond W. McLaughlin, of Galilee Baptist Church, who will officiate at Patrolman Major's funeral at 1 p.m. Monday.

This is what she wrote: Doctor, I have written this as it comes out of my heart. I can't say enough about Paul, for he has been the ALL of my life. This text is rough. Please reword it and use what you think fitting. But, above all, show how through his life his thoughts and deeds were always for others, never himself.

Paul was born Nov. 23, 1923, at Bluffs, Ill. His mother is Alice Major. His father, Archie, is deceased. The rest of his family includes his wife, Dorothy Karen; a daughter, Karen Auret; a son, Michael Allan; two brothers, Kenneth Lee and Archie Edward, and two sisters, Betty Lou Schaeffer and Loretta Mae Settles.

Paul was graduated from Mountain High School in Jefferson County, Colorado, in May 1941, and took a government job at the Remington Arms Plant.

In the fall, he entered the University of Colorado to study to become a lawyer, a profession in which he felt he could serve the public as had his father, who served until his death as justice of the peace for Jefferson County.

But all his friends began serving their country in World War II. After only a year of college and without regard to his dream of serving the country in another capacity, Paul enlisted in the Navy for three years. When this was up he re-enlisted for another three years and was honorably discharged as a signalman second class on Nov. 22, 1948.

He met me on a bus. My mother had flown to London, England, to visit a sister, and I was going to stay with friends in Phoenix, Ariz. Paul, still in the Navy then, was on his way to Denver to be with his family for the Christmas holidays.

We were married in Solana Beach, north of San Diego, on Aug. 14, 1948.

Until October, 1949, Paul was "at sea" about what he wanted to do with his life. And so he took various courses — in refrigeration and engineering — while holding a full-time job.

Feeling no satisfaction with what he was doing, and after careful thought, he knew he had to again serve the people.

That is why Paul chose the Denver Police Department.

He joined it Oct. 1, 1949. Please, Dr. McLaughlin, get his record of 15 years' service with the Department. It is definitely not to be slighted.

His devotion to duty, his kindness, consideration, love of children, his patience, his great love for me, all these make it so hard for me to believe he is gone.

But I have so much to be thankful for — more than 16 years of married life, and two children through whom he will live on.

He was a true family man. Doctor, please use Psalm 46:1 in the service:

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

—Dorothy K. Major

Ready For The Next 100

Edgar T. Conquest will celebrate his birthday Sunday in an ordinary way — with ice cream and cake.

But it's no ordinary birthday. He'll be 100 years old.

Born near Jacksonville, Ill., on Jan. 24, 1865, he moved to Greenwood, Mo., when he was 2. He came to Canon City in 1889 and worked at cattle punching, in hotel work and as a line-man for the Rio Grande Railroad.

That's the way Joanne Reckler of the ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS staff led off with her interview of the Morgan county native and centenarian.

She reported that Conquest ran the first "incandescent light plant" in Canon City in 1890 and started the first steam laundry there in 1892, and worked in real estate, ice and automobile businesses before moving to Denver in 1909.

There he became associated with the Commercial Savings bank, and was a member of the board and vice president for 18 years. In 1927 he was sergeant-at-arms in the State House of Representatives for one session, and then served as U.S. marshal in Sterling, Colo., for one year.

He married a girl 22 years his junior in 1918 and they have two daughters. A brother, LeRoy, lives in Kansas City, "just a kid of 86."

Conquest remains a baseball fan. He played semi-pro ball "off and on for 25 years," and "gaily recalls his attendance during two World Series — one in 1917 and one in 1930." He terms the White Sox in 1917, 1918, 1919 the greatest aggregation of baseball players that was ever on a team.

Miss Reckler asked him did he drink or smoke.

"Terrible. I smoke three or four cigars a day and drink liquor when I can get it. I still like the girls, and wink at the pretty ones ever chance I get."

Senate Remap Plans Promised This Week

By DICK EMERY
SPRINGFIELD — GOP leaders have promised to introduce their version of State Senate reapportionment Tuesday when the Illinois Legislature reconvenes for its second week of fully-organized activity.

Appointments to all standing committees are now complete in both Houses. These groups are now getting organized and some Senate committees are already hearing bills.

The first House committee to get organized, the Reapportionment group, will meet Tuesday and consider the reapportionment plans for both the House and the Senate which have been submitted by the Democratic leaders.

The Republican reapportionment map for the House was submitted last week. Sen. W. Russell Arrington, R-Evanston, GOP leader in the Senate, said Republican proposals of state Senate redistricting will be introduced next week.

Sen. Arthur Gottschalk, R-Park Forest, chairman of the Commission on the Department of Commerce, will reveal findings Monday of a study conducted by the Commission in connection with a proposal to set up a new code department of economic development in Illinois.

Economic Development
A Board of Economic Development has been functioning in such areas as industrial development, planning, tourism, and exports since 1961.

Gov. Otto Kerner called for the elevation of the Board to departmental level in 1963, but the proposal failed to clear the Legislature. The Governor requested this action again last week in his legislative message delivered to a joint session of the General Assembly.

"I will consult with the Commission on presentation of legislation on this subject," Kerner told the lawmakers. "I propose that such a department be adequately financed and staffed and that an office be set up in Washington, D.C., so that interests of Illinois are constantly made known in the nation's capital."

Kerner also proposed programming of missions on industrial development, state and local planning, tourism, water resources, export expansion and business services.

"We need to take these steps to insure that Illinois continues to lead all comparable states in maintaining our booming economy," Kerner stated.

Mayor Declares Humane Society Study Underway

Mayor Byron Holkenbrink, in a statement release Saturday, disclosed the appointment of a six-man committee to organize a humane society for Jacksonville and Morgan county.

Holkenbrink related that at the request of the members of the committee, he is withholding the name of the appointees until such time as the humane society is completely organized and functioning.

The mayor, in behalf of the committee members, has invited the interested people of the community for contributions for the physical improvement of the city dog pound.

Improvements could include an out-of-doors runway, into which the dogs might be allowed to run during the daylight hours.

This, Holkenbrink added, would thereby make easy access to those who might be looking for their pet, or perhaps choose an unclaimed pet for their home.

Many of the dogs in custody are of good breeding, and homes are being found as soon as possible.

Aid The Pups
Holkenbrink said that contributions for improvements on the pound may be sent to Police Chief Charles Runkel, who will act as temporary treasurer for the committee.

Contributions should be sent to Runkel in care of the city hall.

The mayor added that should an amount in excess of needs materialize, the public will be so informed.

Several places of business and clubs have offered a spot for canisters into which donations may be placed.

IT TAKES A LOT TO MAKE A LOT!

There's a lot more money passing through the farmer's hands today than there was ten or fifteen years ago. But most of it is going just that - passing through. A new U. S. D. A. study shows that the average farm in America has more than doubled its gross cash income since 1949. During the same period net income has grown by less than half.

Since 1949, the average farm's gross has climbed $6,100 per year, net income rose only $1,100. Last year, the average U.S. farm grossed $11,700, but netted only $3,500.

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

WHAT'S AHEAD FOR CATTLE MARKET?

What's ahead for the cattle market? The USDA report of cattle on feed January 1 gives some clues. From them we can draw some conclusions, or at least make some estimates.

The report indicates that market receipts of fed cattle might be slightly less during this first quarter than they were a year ago. But receipts may be larger in the spring than they were in 1964.

Let's start with what farmers said about their plans to sell fed cattle. Of the cattle on feed January 1, farmers reported that they intended to sell 3,960,000 head before April 1. This number would be 4 per cent less than they sold in the first quarter a year ago.

Here's another clue pointing to the same conclusion: The number of cattle nearing market weights is down about the same amount, according to the USDA report. It shows that on January 1 there were in feedlots in 34 states, 2,035,000 steers weighing over 900 pounds, plus 1,042,000 heifers weighing over 700 pounds. The total is 3,077,000 head, or 4 per cent less than last year.

More light and mid-weight cattle. The number of cattle of lighter weights in feedlots on January 1 totaled 6,077,000 head, 3 per cent more than a year earlier. This group includes steers weighing less than 900 pounds and heifers weighing less than 700 pounds. Most of these cattle will be marketed during the second and third quarters.

These animals will make up most of the supply of fed cattle available for market during the spring and summer. But, in addition to them, farmers will be selling a substantial number of cattle that will be started on feed after January 1. Thus the number of cattle on feed at the first of the year does not provide a full picture of prospective market supplies for the second and third quarters.

Receipts to vary from those indicated. We should hasten to add that even in this first quarter actual marketings of fed cattle are likely to vary somewhat from those indicated by the USDA report. There are three reasons: (1) The report makes no allowance for sales of very short-fed cattle - purchased after January 1 and sold before April 1. (2) Some farmers will change their minds - and sell more or less cattle than they intended and reported at the first of January. (3) Farmers not returning questionnaires may sell relatively more or less cattle than the farmers who reported to the USDA.

Price prospects. During the first quarter last year, prices of choice steers at Chicago averaged $21.85. Prices may hold around $2.00 higher this year because of stronger consumer demand, slightly smaller receipts of cattle, reduced average weights and less competition from pork.

During the second quarter of 1964, prices of choice steers averaged $21.10. Prices this year will receive added support from greater consumer demand and lessened supplies of pork. But market receipts and average weights may equal or exceed those of the year before.

The next important report for livestock producers will be the report of numbers of livestock on farms January 1. It will be released on February 12.

Meeting Feb. 11 For Livestock Producers

The St. Louis National Stock Yards is sponsoring a meeting for livestock producers and feeders to be held Thursday, Feb. 11, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Farm Bureau hall.

New and proven methods of production and how to command the best price for livestock will be discussed by men who are considered experts in that field, says C. J. "Cap" Smith, who will be in charge of the program.

C. J. "Cap" Smith

Smith is the director of public relations for the stock yards association.

"Whether you raise five head or five hundred you owe it to yourself, and to the successful future of the livestock industry to keep abreast of changing technology and procedures," Smith says.

"Businessmen, as well as farmers, are cordially invited to attend. An expanding livestock business in Morgan county will mean more to the future economy than a new commercial industry."

"Bring the wife and family, and especially that vo-ag student."

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

IRRIGATION TOPIC OF BALYKI ADULT FARMER CLASS

BATH - The first meeting of the Balyki Adult Farmer class, held Thursday, January 21, was attended by twenty farmers. The subject discussed was "Irrigation."

Four Mason County farmers, Louis Stelter, Havana; Morris Bell, Chandler; Fred Kruse, Easton; and Glenn Fanter, Topeka were guest speakers at the meeting.

These farmers, who have been irrigating, presented a short summary of the type of irrigation system in use. The meeting was then opened for questions and discussion.

The next regular meeting is to be held Thursday, February 4.

The subject will again be "Irrigation" with Robert Jacobson, Macomb, Illinois as the guest speaker. Mr. Jacobson is a representative of the John C. Fayhee Company.

All area farmers are welcome to attend these meetings.

Should Some Farmers Be Retired At 55? Dean Butz Says 'Yes'

Dr. Earl L. Butz, Purdue University's dean of agriculture, last week proposed a program of early retirement with benefits for older, low income farmers.

Discussing the small farm adjustment problem at an agricultural policy conference at Purdue's Farm Science Days, Butz said:

"A system should be developed whereby farm operators who have gross sales of, let us say, less than $5,000 annually, and who are 55 years of age or older, can be paid the equivalent of Social Security, in cash payments until they reach age 65 and qualify for payments under the regular Social Security program."

Certain restrictions and safeguards must be built into such a program, he emphasized, listing:

1. Voluntary participation with non-farmers excluded.
2. Continued residence on the farm with provision for sale or for estate settlement.
3. Agreement to place the whole farm in the acreage retirement program under the current pay rates.
4. Individuals may produce for home consumption, but not for sale.

Butz said it is estimated that not more than 300,000 farm operators would qualify for participation in this plan. He made it clear that the plan was not directed toward part-time or part-retirement farms, even though they may be small.

"If we assume that 250,000 farmers participated, and we further assume an average annual payment of $1,000 per farmer per year, this would mean a total cost of $250 million for the program," he continued.

"It should be possible to transfer this magnitude of payment from funds being spent elsewhere in the agricultural program," Butz asserted.

The educator proposed that this money be channeled for funds now being used for production increasing payments of one kind or another. These funds in the main, amounting to about $2 billion, are for the Agricultural Conservation Program, price supports at incentive levels and the like.

Directing the funds into this plan would "effect people adjustment" at the level where the problem really is," Butz said. "This can be done, if the Congress is courageous enough to face the fact that these people are the real victims of technological progress in agriculture, and that this is the only effective way to channel relief to them."

Butz said the plan, at no additional cost, can:

"Teach a large number of the real victims of technological progress in agriculture. Separate from the farm problem that group of farmers that has made it most difficult, from a political point of view, to achieve economically sound farm programs. And mount a massive anti-poverty program in the agricultural sector of the economy."

Rockets And Space—

Jupiter's Odd Points

By Walter B. Hendrickson, Jr.

There are many strange things happening on Jupiter, the largest planet in the Solar System.

One of the strangest things about the spin of Jupiter seems to have slowed down 1.5 seconds. Both radio observations of a source of static on Jupiter and the visual observation of the planet bear this out.

But how could a planet slow down without some outside help? This is the puzzle that faces scientists.

Even the things about Jupiter which scientists can understand are very strange. Jupiter is 28,800 miles wide, almost 11 times as wide as earth, which is reported on this to the National Academy of Science in Washington. The first week in May gravity to be eleven times what it is on earth but Jupiter's gravity is only twice that of earth. The reason for this is that Jupiter is only about a fourth as dense as earth. It is mainly a ball of rather dense gases — heavy clouds — rather than a solid mass as earth is.

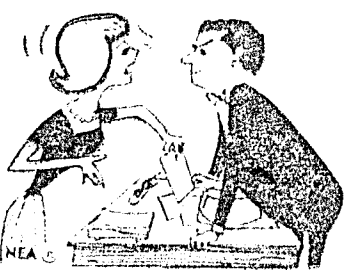

200 Below Zero

Scientists think that the main element of Jupiter is hydrogen. On earth hydrogen is a gas, but on the outside of Jupiter it would be a liquid because of the great cold — 200 degrees below zero. Pressure would force this liquid to be more and more firm as it came nearer Jupiter's center until at the very center it would be a metal-like solid.

Because Jupiter is so far from the sun — 484 million miles as compared with our 93 million miles — elements that form earth's atmosphere are always liquid or even solid on Jupiter.

Ammonia Snow
Like the other four giant planets Jupiter has an atmosphere of poisonous methane and ammonia. The temperatures on these planets are so low that the ammonia would be like snow on earth.

The atmosphere of Jupiter is so thick that we can never see its surface. What we do see are several bands of colored clouds. There is also a strange Red

THAT CRAZY PARROT

By John Rankin

Part 2: Exciting Night

When Mom gets word that Aunt Martha is coming for a visit her son Billy and his Dad hope that she will not bring that crazy parrot. The letter says she will, however. When they meet the train there is no Aunt Martha but the parrot is there — and a wire.

Mom took the message and opened it hurriedly. "It's from Aunt Martha," she said. "She missed her train but will arrive tomorrow night."

"That all? Nothing about the bird?" Dad grunted.

"Oh yes, there's more, my dear," Mom chortled. "Aunt Martha feels that Elmer will be more at home in your room."

On his bunk in the basement that night Dad had just dropped to sleep when a shrill squawk, and above brought him up with a start.

"That infernal parrot!" he muttered as he sprang to the floor and switched on the light.

Then from his bed by Billy's cot Corky let go a series of blood-chilling yowls. Billy pounced to the floor with a thud.

"Suffering cats," he grunted. "Thought maybe the house was on fire or something."

"It might as well be," Dad bristled from the side of his bunk. "And with Aunt Martha moving in to camp directly above us with that chattering parrot there'll be no peace or sanity in this house for weeks — perhaps months!"

Billy Has Plan
After a moment's silence Billy said, "Hey, Dad if things got a little rough for Aunt Martha and her silly parrot maybe she wouldn't stick around so long."

Dad looked up quickly. "Yeah, maybe, how son?" Billy's eyes swept up to the vent in the bedroom floor. "If we can make Aunt Martha think that Corky might get at Elmer she'll scam out of here in a hurry," he muttered.

Dad's eyes lit up hopefully. "Yeah, sure son," he nodded. "Maybe we can come up with something..."

Billy's eyes suddenly sparkled with a new light. "Hey Dad, I've got it," he exclaimed. "I know what we can do and I know the very guy that will help us put it over."

Aunt Martha Goes Home
A couple of days later Dad and Mom were driving home from the railroad station when Mom said wistfully, "Aunt Martha is such a dear soul. Henry, and even though she declared that pressing business matters beckoned her home I feel that you and Billy are at fault — especially when you gave Corky the run of the house last night and Elmer barely escaped with his life."

"I plead not guilty to the charge," Dad snapped. "Corky was in the basement the entire night."

Then perhaps you can explain his presence in Aunt Martha's room when he tried to get at Elmer. Mister counselor," Mom smirked. "It is well that I got in there when I did."

Dad flashed Mom a tantalizing grin. "And did you find Corky at the scene?"

Big Mystery Solved
"Not really," she admitted. "Amid all the screaming and yelling he managed to escape leaving the room littered with feathers and both Aunt Martha and Elmer in a state of nervous shock. How do you account for that, Mister attorney?"

"By the use of simple logic, my dear," Dad grinned. "Ever hear of a ventriloquist? Commonly called voice throwers?"

"Yes of course," Mom nodded. "But you're not a voice thrower, neither is Billy."

"But Billy has a pal whose father is," Dad boasted. "Does a lot of amateur entertaining. Cut fights, bird imitation and that sort of thing and he did a great job giving Aunt Martha the business from down in the basement last night."

"I understand," Mom said dryly. "But how did he manage to get all those feathers into Aunt Martha's room? Is he some sort of magician too?"

"No. That was Billy's idea," Dad grinned. "and he really had a ball blowing chicken feathers up through the vent with a vacuum cleaner."

Let's Go Birding

Rarities

By Emma Mae Leonhard

We have heard from time to time the same questions and complaints: "Where are the birds this winter? Where are the Cardinals? They haven't been coming to my feeder as they used to."

We can guess that the birds are delighting in the natural feed during this open winter, at least comparatively open so far. We know that there are many Cardinals; more than once we have seen as many as fifty in one flock, flashing their red in weed patches and at the edge of woods.

We do grant that we have missed seeing many of our bird friends this winter: crossbills, Red-breasted Nuthatches, White-crowned Sparrows, Pine Siskins, to mention a few. But we have been thrilled with a few rarities. We have already reported the American Brant that visited Morgan Lake in Nichols Park in October and remained with us for several weeks until it suffered a tragic death.

We were also lucky enough to be in the right place at the right time to see the graceful and rapid flight of a Harlan's Hawk over the George Vasey farm. We shared a story about this experience with you in an earlier article.

White Pelican
Springfield has also been favored with two rarities: a White Pelican and three Old-Squaws. For several days the huge white bird with black primaries, long flat bill, and great yellow throat-pouch was seen on an island in Lake Springfield.

This White Pelican must have been a very late straggler in migration from the North-west across the prairie states to the Gulf Coast of Florida; it was seen as late as November 15 but had left before the Christmas bird count.

Ike Funk, Stockman, Dies

Isaac Funk, 67, pioneer Illinois farmer, livestock feeder, buyer and drover, legislator and Civil War patriot, was buried a hundred years ago today in Funk's Grove cemetery, McLean county.

As so many of the great men of Illinois, he was born in Kentucky. He had a wagonload of household goods and farm implements and a debt of $2,000 when he came to the prairies of Illinois late in 1823, six years before McLean county was organized. In 42 years of intense usefulness he became the owner of 25,000 acres of the finest land in the world, in a compact block in Funk's Grove, Mt. Hope and Dale townships.

Others men who acquired huge blocks of farmland in Illinois came to the state with money, acquired or inherited elsewhere. But only one of them ended up with such a desirable collection of fruitful acres. This was William Scully, a rich Irishman.

Funk's ancestors, Germans, migrated from Virginia through the Cumberland Gap to Kentucky. The Bloody Land, Kent after he was born his father joined the migration to Ohio, settling in Fayette county in the southwestern part of the state.

There Isaac helped on the farm and between the ages of 10 and 13 attended parts of three winter terms of school. When he was 15 he was helping drive cattle and hogs to Baltimore, New York City, Albany and Buffalo.

On His Own
By the time he was of legal age he was an independent trader and drover and was successful until the winter of 1843, when he was driving a big bunch of hogs, mostly bought on credit, to Buffalo. He lost them in a fierce three-day blizzard in northwestern Pennsylvania. He returned to Ohio, paid off everything except $2,000, loaded up his wagon and came to Illinois.

Three years later he returned to Ohio and paid off his debts, plus interest at 20 percent per annum. If he had decided not to honor his obligations he could have stayed home and used the money to buy more than a thousand acres of good land.

For many years Funk dominated the Chicago livestock market, just as his friend, Jacob Strawn of Jacksonville, dominated the St. Louis market. Their business methods were almost identical, although Funk's were more intense. Essentially, their name and reputation for honest dealing gave them unlimited credit; they operated on the other man's money and put their profits into land.

Without a penny they could buy all the available livestock in their area.

Trusted By All Concerned
Merchants of the day usually bought on six-months' credit from the wholesalers in Chicago and St. Louis. The merchants learned that the best, surest and easiest way to settle their accounts was to give the money to Funk or Strawn. They'd use the money to buy livestock, and take additional stock on credit, and drive them to market. After the sale the wholesalers and farmers were paid off, and everybody was content, better off.

Sounds simple, doesn't it?

But buying a drove of hogs or cattle, getting them to market, and then battling the market rigged often by speculators is no boy's game, as many, many men who tried it in those days found out.

Often packers and speculators banded together to control the market. Strawn beat them by building large holding pens on the east side of the Mississippi. Funk beat them by contracting sale of fresh meat in New York and leasing a slaughter house in Chicago.

The Sharper's Beaten

After getting drubbed a couple of times the "ring" came to have high respect for Strawn and Funk, and left them alone. It is impossible to estimate how much more money these two men put into the pockets of Illinois livestock men simply by breaking the power and operations of market conspirators.

Physically, Funk was a powerful man and his endurance was beyond belief. He was compact, five feet, ten tall and weighed 200 pounds. His black hair was inclined to curl and his dark brown eyes didn't miss anything. His head, a little too large, sat on a thick, short neck. He never slowed down long enough to smoke, but chewed tobacco, and enjoyed beer and bourbon - as a Kentucky-born German should - during his few leisure hours.

He began buying land in 1829, 1,040 acres of prairie. After that he bought land nearly every year. His methods of buying land were most unusual. Instead of acquiring 400 acres in one plot, he'd take a 40 here and another 40 there and an 30 here and maybe a 160 altogether here. A map of his early holdings looked pretty much like a checkerboard. These small first purchases were always the best, the commanding spot, of the section - which he bought later on.

A Human Computer
Despite his extremely limited formal education Funk was a mathematical genius. When buying he would view the cattle or hogs as they were driven by him, count them, estimate their weight and compute their value, and make his offer for the lot by the time the last animal passed by. This seems unbelievable, but that it worked is proved by the double facts that he made money and that he bought livestock from the same man year after year.

They must have been satisfied, otherwise they wouldn't have continued dealing with him.

With all his vast dealings and holdings he never kept accounts of any kind. One wonders how he and the IRS of today would have gotten along.

He didn't make a will. Instead he told his children what lands they would inherit, with the cash on hand at the time of his death to be divided equally, and a justice of peace settled the estate one Saturday afternoon by drawing up quit claim deeds for certain properties in favor of one heir, with the other children joining in by signing the deed.

Just that simple.
Funk was a Methodist and a firm supporter of Illinois Wesleyan College at Bloomington and the Republican party.

Ardent Unionists
As did Jacob Strawn, Funk ardently supported the Union during the Civil War. He was elected state senator in 1860 to fill the unexpired term of his friend, Richard Oglesby, the only three-time governor in the history of Illinois. He was re-elected in 1862, one of the very few downstate Republican winners. In August, 1862, he helped organize the 94th Illinois Infantry regiment at Bloomington by giving $50 to every volunteer, nearly $50,000.

In the political arena he scored Feb. 12, 1863, with his first and only speech in the Illinois Senate. It was a philippic to end all philippics and those privileged to hear it told their grandchildren about it.

The Democrats carried the state in 1862, and the party was controlled by men lukewarm to the prosecution of the war. That is putting it mildly, for some of them were outright Southern sympathizers.

Only One Speech
On Lincoln's birthday in 1863 a bill was presented to appropriate $50,000 to the Illinois Sanitary Commission for the care of sick and wounded Illinois soldiers. The Democratic leaders were determined to beat it, primarily to embarrass President Lincoln and Governor Yates. Their main argument was that it would raise taxes.

Funk stood up and in a short speech full of scorn and sarcasm he literally took the hide off the opposition. He called the opposition leaders frauds, scoundrels, scoundrels and traitors, asserting that most of them had never paid any taxes in their life, and never would; that he paid heavy taxes and was willing to give his entire wealth, if need be, for the preservation of the Union.

He wound up by saying that the Senate leaders deserved a "hempen collar" and that he stood ready to help see they got their dues.

The bill was passed by an overwhelming majority. The Union newspapers all over the country reprinted the speech in full and Funk's talk undoubtedly did more for the Union cause than did his 94th regiment, or any other Illinois regiment.

Do we today have any men like Ike Funk? I don't know them, but maybe they're here smothered by payrollers and other small folks.

The Danish Government proposes to open the coasting trade of the country to all nations. The London COURT JOURNAL remarks: The latest novelty in the way of matrimonial advertisements, is the precision with which the details are entered into. A lady of Liverpool, for instance, thus puts forth her catalogue of requirements. After stating that she is forty and has two thousand three hundred pounds, she says: The gentleman must be forty, not beyond forty-five, tall, of good carriage, have good teeth and hair, and be most particular in his personal habits, accustomed to daily immersion.

Incident At Columbia

From The Memoirs Of Gen. W. T. Sherman:

The evening before the fire that devastated so much of Columbia, S. C., the mayor, Dr. Goodwin, came to my quarters at Duncan's house, and remarked that there was a lady in Columbia who professed to be a special friend of mine. On his giving her name, I could not recall it, but inquired as to her maiden or family name. He answered "Poyas."

It so happened that, when I was a lieutenant at Fort Moultrie, in 1842-46, I used very often to visit a family of that name on the East Branch of the Cooper River, about forty miles from Fort Moultrie, and to hunt with the son, Mr. James Poyas, an elegant young fellow and a fine sportsman.

His father, mother, and several sisters, composed the family, and were extremely hospitable. One of the ladies was very fond of painting in water-colors, which was one of my weaknesses, and on one occasion I had presented her with a volume, treating of water-colors. Of course, I was glad to renew the acquaintance, and proposed to Dr. Goodwin that we should walk to her house and visit this lady, which we did.

A Stately House
The house stood beyond the Charlotte depot, in a large lot, was of frame, with a high porch, which was reached by a set of steps outside. Entering the yard I noticed ducks and chickens, and a general air of peace and comfort that was really pleasant to behold at that time of universal desolation.

The lady in question met us at the head of the steps and invited us into a parlor which was perfectly neat and well furnished. After inquiring about her father, mother, sisters, and especially her brother, James, my special friend, I could not help saying that I was pleased to notice that our men had not handled her house and premises as roughly as was their wont.

"I owe it to you, general," she answered. "Not at all, I did not know you were here till a few minutes ago."

She reiterated that she was indebted to me for the perfect safety of her house and property, and added, "You remember, when you were at our house on Cooper River in 1845, you gave me a book?" and she handed me the book in question, on the fly-leaf of which was written: "To — Poyas, with the compliments of W. T. Sherman, First Lieutenant Third Artillery."

She then explained that, as our army approached Columbia, there was a doubt in her mind whether the terrible Sherman, who was devastating the land was W. T. Sherman or T. W. Sherman, both known to be generals in the Northern Army; but, on the supposition that he was her old acquaintance, when Wade Hampton's cavalry drew out of the city, calling out that the Yankees were coming, she armed herself with this book, and awaited the crisis.

The "Bummers" Arrive
Soon the shouts around the market-place announced that the Yankees had come; very soon men were seen running up and down the streets; a parcel of them poured over the fence, began to chase the chickens and ducks, and to enter her house.

She observed one large man, with full beard, who exercised some authority, and to him she appealed in the name of "his general." "What do you know of Uncle Billy?" Why," she said, "when he was a young man he used to be our friend in Charleston, and here is a book he gave me."

The officer or soldier took the book, looked at the inscription, and turning to his fellows, said: "Boys, that's so: that's Uncle Billy's writing, for I've seen it often before." He at once commanded the party to stop pillaging, and left a man in charge of the house, to protect her until the regular provost-guard should be established. I then asked her if the regular guard or sentry had been as good to her. She assured me that he was a very nice young man; that he had been telling her all about his family in Iowa; that at that very instant of time he was in another room minding her baby.

Saved By Good Sense
Now, this lady had good sense and tact, and had thus turned aside a party who, in five minutes more, would have rifled her premises of all that was good to eat or wear. I made her a long social visit, and, before leaving Columbia, gave her a half-hundred of rice and about one hundred pounds of ham from own mess-stores.

Creeping myrtle, also known as ground ivy, was once believed to be a cure for snake-bite, intestinal trouble and envy.

The sum of $865,943 has been received at the marble quarries at Lee, Mass., for material for the extension of the Capital building at Washington City.

Sorghum is now cultivated to a considerable extent in Orange county, N. Y. The best cultivated plots yielded about 300 gallons of syrup per acre, worth now $1.30 per gallon.

In his late address before the Tennessee Convention, Andy Johnson said: "If Mr. Lincoln and Jeff Davis were to unite their powers, they could not prevent the universal emancipation of the negro. It is like a huge avalanche, half on its course; its destiny is certain and irresistible."

The Richmond papers are beginning to cultivate a wedge to the return of the Southern States to the Union, by inveighing against the perfidious conduct of England in enticing them into a rebellion and then leaving them in the lurch.

Mr. William Branch, a well-known stock broker, of Wall Street, was killed on the 23d of January, while standing on Broad street, by a brick falling on his head.

Enoch Arden has been brought out at the Arch Theatre, Philadelphia. The popularity of this pretty poem is not complimentary to the age, for there is no heroism in a man suffering his wife to live with another man, and then, with his dying breath, blast her reputation and happiness by revealing who he was to a village gossip.

The divorce laws in Indiana have been altered; a year's residence is now indispensable. The consumption of printing paper in this country equals that of Great Britain and France combined.

The four years of continued suffering which the people of Savannah have endured have left an expression of pain upon their faces. Men have remained in their houses for months, without ever going into the streets, for fear of being conscripted; and an instance is mentioned of one man who had not gone outside of his doors for three years.

COAL EXTRACTING — Those individuals who are helping themselves to our coal without our consent, would do us a favor by letting us know how much more they will need this winter, for we do not want to run out again. Please let us know at your earliest convenience, as we see from the size of our pile that we shall be compelled to order more soon.

A PESTILENCE — We learn that the dreadful disease Small Pox is now raging in Virginia, Illinois, and assistance cannot be got at any price. Our informant says that in some cases those afflicted have died and laid in their bed two or three days before anyone would venture to lay them out. The children of our public schools should be vaccinated, and every citizen should adopt the same preventative. We do not wish to cause any unnecessary uneasiness, but if the pestilence should visit our city it would not be amiss to be free from its dangers.

It is said that within the last eight months over four hundred newspapers have come to an untimely end in consequence of the exorbitant price of paper.

JADE FOR A LADY

XXXVI
The lock gave up after about five minutes of hard work. I heard it click, and I pulled on the case that had been built against the wall.

It was a beautiful sight. What had been the original wall was covered with black velvet, and on it the jade was displayed. There was a white jade, green jade, brown jade—every color and variety you could imagine.

"There you are, Inspector," I said.

I still had to pay my bill to Jimmy. I had an idea he'd come around to collect after I returned to my hotel.

Finally, there was a knock on the door. I yelled for him to come in. It was Jimmy, the usual broad smile on his face.

"How are you feeling?" "I owe you a lot, Jimmy."

"I only did what was good for business," he said. "Anything else happen?"

"The police arrested Linda McKay. They also recovered all of the missing jade from her apartment."

"That is a surprise." "Jimmy, you saved my life three times. I can't save your life three times, but I can save it once."

"How?" "I took the gun from the sling around my arm and pointed it at him. By warning you in advance not to use that gun inside your coat. Now very carefully take off your coat and let it drop to the floor."

He did. "Now," I said, "unbuckle the holster and let it drop." He watched me the way a lion watches a hunt. He looked at me and I told him about five minutes of hard work. I heard it click, and I pulled on the case that had been built against the wall.

"What's this all about?" he asked.

"You know," I told him. "It's about you and Linda McKay and over $2,000,000 worth of jade."

"Well, we come to my case. I got on it and by accident found a lead to Hong Kong. You had anticipated that too but when Whitey failed, you knew things might become risky. You decided to go out of business and this is where you got really clever. I give you credit for that."

"He smiled faintly. 'I'm not married.'"

"Well, we come to my case. I got on it and by accident found a lead to Hong Kong. You had anticipated that too but when Whitey failed, you knew things might become risky. You decided to go out of business and this is where you got really clever. I give you credit for that."

"You passed orders through Ma Tsing to have me killed, and you got a job with me and saved my life. This made you a hero to me, and I prepared for the big scene in which you'd save my life again—and kill Ma Tsing at the same time. That way there was no one, except your woman, who could put the finger on you. To all intents and purposes, the gang of international thieves would all be arrested and sent away. None of them knew about you, so you and Linda would pack your suitcases with jade and go away."

"What made you think of me?" he asked.

"It was mostly because you were always around. And when I started thinking about you, everything fell into place. Even the fact that nobody, not even Po Hing, seemed to know you; yet if you'd been the kind of operator you told me you were, everybody would have known you."

"Then we come to Mary Tsing, you got a group together; a few more Chinese, two American gunmen, and Frank Burney. Frank was valuable in many ways. He always needed money, I gather. You sent Linda with money to buy a half-interest in his agency. I suspect that even Ma Tsing didn't know about her. That way, she could keep an eye on things for you. It was neat. Nobody else even knew you existed."

"The way I figure it, I said, 'You were an ambitious lad. You had a few things going for you and were making a buck. Then you got this jade bug and worked out a pretty good plan. You knew it wouldn't be good forever, and someday the police would catch up with you. So you decided to stay out of sight as much as possible. Maybe you run other rackets that way too. Anyway, you trusted only two people: Ma Tsing and Linda McKay, who was probably your sweetheart.'

Arenzville Pageant Historian Describes Village's Founding

"In 1821 there were but 20 white families within the present limits of Morgan, Cass, and Scott counties." According to Arenzville historian Mrs. Leand Schnake of Beardstown, immigration to the area had been impeded by the powerful and warlike Kickapoo Indians.

In a paper presented to the Morgan County Historical Society on Jan. 22, Mrs. Schnake said that the area was settled rapidly after the Kickapoos signed a treaty in the early nineteenth century and "Sangamo Country" (presently the counties of Cass, Morgan, Scott, Mason, Menard, Sangamon, Logan, and Macon) became well-known for its fertile soil.

She described the founding of the town of Arenzville, the activities of its early residents, the "three-mile strip controversy" of 1836-45, the 90 day cattle drives to New York City, the ten years prior to the completion of the Wabash Railroad to Jacksonville, the diversification of religion and the church organization of southern Cass County, the origin and development of the famous Arenzville burgoos, the opening of the CB & Q railroad through Arenzville, the thriving saloon business of the town, and such popular events as camp meetings, horse shows, and opera house productions.

Mrs. Schnake was the official historian for last September's Arenzville Centennial celebration. She wrote and directed the pageant for that event.

Beginnings from a Grist Mill
A grist mill for grinding grain was opened by James Smart in 1821 at what is now Arenzville, and it was sold to Bennet Smart in 1832. A year later Francis Arenz, a 33-year old Prussian, bought the property and then laid out the town in 1839.

Arenz had been active in Beardstown politics, merchandizing, real estate, and publishing for several years, and he had lived on a farm named "Recluse" six miles southeast of Beardstown since 1835.

With a new saw mill, which was later rebuilt into a flour mill, and a mercantile store in which his brother, J. A. Arenz, was a partner for a short time, the town began to prosper.

In 1853 the mill, the store, and a tract of land were sold to Herman Engelbach and Peter Arenz, in whose hands the concern proved very profitable.

Francis Arenz seemed relieved to be rid of his business so that he had more time to devote to attending meetings of all kinds, most of which were for the improvement of the county. Fond of politics, he was a member of the Whig party. He attended almost every session of the state legislature in order to promote the interests of Cass County.

Always interested in agriculture, Arenz was one of the organizers of the State Agricultural Society at Springfield on Jan. 5, 1853. He was a vice-president until his death on April 2, 1856. He also organized the Cass County Agricultural Society on Jan. 5, 1855, and was elected its first president.

Arenz was the father of four sons and four daughters. The first lots in the town were actually surveyed by J. A. Arenz, brother of Francis Arenz. It was not until July 9, 1853, that the town was organized and the first trustees were elected.

The "Three-mile Controversy" Even before the first town board was elected, Arenzville residents were involved in a controversy over county lines. When the state legislature formed Cass County from the northern part of Morgan County, there was much dissatisfaction among residents of an area generally called the "three-mile territory" which had remained in Morgan but whose residents preferred to be a part of Cass.

The constituents in Morgan could outvote Cass by at least ten to one in any election, but in 1845 the legislature permitted the three-mile strip residents to decide where they would belong. The vote was 246 for Cass and 78 for Morgan.

Thus, Cass County gained nearly 57,000 acres of excellent land.

Farming was Chief Industry As in the rest of the county, farming was the chief industry around Arenzville. The settler broke his land after the trees and brush had been cleared. Corn was planted by hand by the children, and then covered with a hoe. Wheat, oats, barley, rye, and similar grains were "broadcast" by hand. Prior to 1860 the grain that was harvested was cut with a cradle, which itself replaced the earlier sickle.

With Chicago being only a small town with no stockyards, the cattle markets were in New York City, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. The drives were long, tedious endeavors which usually started about the first of May when the grazing enroute was good. Crossing the suspension bridge at Niagara Falls always was the most difficult part of the drives.

Not all Arenzville pioneers became accustomed to farming. Among the early emigrants from Germany were many who had been accustomed to good society and who had enjoyed advantages of superior education. Lovers of music, some could play on one or more musical instruments.

Generally called the "Latin farmers," they could not convince themselves that life should be nothing but hard work.

A club was formed. Little concerts were organized, the instruments being piano, violin, flute, and violoncello. Dancing parties were arranged occasionally, as were large hunting parties.

A musical band was organized under the leadership of a Mr. Holzermann.

One of the "Latin farmers," Dr. George Engelbach, gave up a medical profession and arrived in 1834. He bought the farm of Peter Taylor, and he was the only one to last as a farmer.

Homes Were Primitive The first houses of the area were built of logs with one or two doors, a big fire-place, and seldom more than one window. Typical furnishings included a table or big chest, a bed, and a few split-bottom chairs.

In almost every home the women used a spinning-wheel and a loom to make yarn and cloth for the family. Surpluses were sold to the stores, and often shopkeepers would sell hand-made jeans, socks, knit gloves, and mittens in St. Louis.

Churches and Schools Built Early A church building was erected in 1839 in the town square, and it was used as a school during the week and by different denominations as a church on Sunday.

The first school building was erected in 1858, the second in 1877, a third in 1892, and the one which now stands in 1910. Additions which are still in use were built in 1937.

French priests had established missions among the Indians along the Illinois River, but most had been abandoned well before 1839. Religion in Cass County depended upon which homeland had supplied emigrants, but little attention was paid to distinctions between denominations, and in the early days itinerant preachers in camp meetings would preach to persons who came from miles around.

Arenzville citizens built the "Union Church" for use by all denominations in 1839, and replaced it with a new building in 1860. The Cumberland Presbyterians bought the latter in 1870.

Some of the German Lutherans decided to build their own building northwest of town in 1849, and those who remained in town built in 1873. A Catholic church was established in 1859. A Methodist church was organized in 1905.

Burgoos Tradition Established In the 1870's the famous Arenzville burgoos were started, probably from Indian influences. Farmers and townspeople gathered in pastures or groves near the edge of town, bringing wild game, other meat, and all kinds of vegetables for the soup.

In recent years the burgoos have become annual "homecoming" affairs.

In 1870 the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad was built from Beardstown to St. Louis, and passed through Arenzville.

Telephones were installed in 1896, and the drainage district was organized in 1899. The Arenzville Independent weekly newspaper was started in 1908 by R. J. Hoagland.

Horse shows were popular after the turn of the century and special programs were held in the opera house until it burned in 1913. Chautauques were held on the school grounds. Except for a brief town prohibition from 1914 to 1916, four or five taverns flourished—especially because Jacksonville and Morgan County were officially "dry."

More recent events are better known. Society Directors Elected Morgan County Historical Society new board of directors members elected at the meeting include Dr. C. P. McClelland, Miss Olive Burnett, Charles T. Bowen, and A. John Pearson.

Incent board members include Dr. Alfred J. Henderson, president; Miss Ruth Bailey, secretary; Miss Miriam Russell, treasurer; Mrs. George L. Drennan, and Donald K. Robinson.

A Prediction On Corn Hybrids Of Tomorrow And What They'll Do

Tomorrow's specialized corn hybrids are likely to be planted earlier, at higher rates and in narrower rows than those of today. They are almost certain to be more susceptible to late lodging, but more resistant to leaf blight. They will probably be higher in oil and possibly have higher protein quality.

That's the forecast of U.I. plant geneticist D. E. Alexander.

From the vantage point of a crop breeder, Alexander pointed to these trends in corn culture:

High plant population. Open-pollinated varieties and most of the early hybrids were bred to perform well at low planting rates—perhaps 9,000 to 16,000 plants per acre. These rates could exploit the fertility and management of the 50- to 100-bushel-per-acre era. But many researchers soon found that high fertility and optimum management would bring higher yields, although few hybrids would perform well above 20,000 per acre. The advent of inexpensive nitrogen, herbicides, efficient machinery and high land prices, however, stimulated research leading to the development of hybrids that performed well in the 20,000 to 24,000 range. High-population hybrids, coupled with appropriate management, tended to boost yields, increase lodging and reduce weed populations.

Single crosses vs. double crosses. Single crosses, modified singles and three-way hybrids have become popular. They are considerably more uniform than the classical double cross and may yield better under certain conditions. Commercial corn-growing regions will probably increase their use of single crosses and similar hybrids. Recent research suggests, however, that future hybrids may be less uniform, but higher yielding, than today's single crosses.

Planting patterns. Research on optimum row width and plant distribution has been going on since corn became a major crop in the Corn Belt. U. of I. agronomist J. W. Pendleton says, "As plant populations increase, there will be a trend toward more drilling and narrower rows. Although neither of these practices will give consistent or spectacular yield increases, they will add a few bushels, especially in favorable corn-growing seasons."

Date of planting. Economies suggest that the commercial corn producer must start planting earlier than now usual. Early plantings, year after year, produce higher yields, reduce lodging and advance the harvesting date. Early planting, together with use of hybrids that are resistant to cold and with adequate insect and weed control treatments, appears to be inevitable.

Disease resistance. Although the stalk rot problem has not been completely solved, solution to the northern leaf blight problem appears to be near. Development of polygene resistance is well under way; many hybrids now have good resistance. U. of I. plant pathologist A. L. Hooker recently discovered a single recess gene that virtually inhibits sporulation and thus checks the spread of the disease. Incorporation of the new gene into inbreds is progressing rapidly. Ultimate use of both systems should eliminate the disease from the Corn Belt.

Quality. Tomorrow's hybrids are almost certain to be higher in oil content than present hybrids. Data from Illinois research suggests that oil content can be increased to 7 percent without reducing yield. Since oil is higher in energy than starch, higher oil types reflect a higher energy-trapping capacity. Research also shows that the structure of the oil is under genetic control. So breeders should be able to control the kinds and amounts of fatty acids produced by corn.

The recent discovery that a recessive gene—Opaque 2—markedly increases the biological quality of endosperm protein is a significant advance in the quest for better corn varieties, Alexander concluded.

Prairie Farms Dairy Co-Op Meets Jan. 28

Prairie Farms Dairy, Inc., will hold its annual meeting in Springfield Thursday.

Fletcher A. Gourley, Prairie Farms Dairy general manager, will report on the dairy cooperative's highly successful business year in which net earnings were increased 104 percent over the previous fiscal period. Most of the $731,000 in net earnings will be returned to the shareholders in dividends and patronage refunds.

Gourley is expected to report on four major acquisitions by the dairy cooperative during the last fiscal year. In January, 1964, Equity Union Creamery of Pana merged with Prairie Farms Dairy, which added the territory in and around Pana and Decatur. The Pure Milk Association of Chicago sold its business in Bloomington to Prairie Farms Dairy in April. In August, Prairie Farms Dairy purchased the New Era Dairy of Carbondale. Also, on that date, the Colonial Dairy, Wood River, was purchased.

The cooperative has five processing plants in Illinois and Jacksonville is one of the nine distribution centers in Illinois, Missouri and Indiana.

Shareholders will elect 20 directors to serve one-year terms. Directors representing this area are Thomas Ford of Greenfield and Harold Hoelscher of Mt. Sterling.

Paul Heinhorst Joins Chrisman Fertilizer Firm

MERIDOSA — A. B. Chrisman Fertilizer company here recently added Paul R. Heinhorst to its staff as a full-time agronomist as part of its customer service program.

Heinhorst, a former vocational agriculture teacher at schools in Newton and Easton, Ill., joined the local fertilizer manufacturer after two years as a plant food consultant for the Morgan County Service Co.

As Chrisman agronomist, he will be available to assist farmers in this area with problems relating to soils, crops and fertilizers.

Heinhorst is a graduate of the University of Illinois where he received a bachelor's degree in agriculture. As a student at Illinois, he was active in a number of agricultural groups, and has continued to participate in agriculture education activities.

Ice cream and other frozen foods are holding their reputation as America's favorite desserts. Consumption of these products climbed to a record level of 21.1 quarts per person in 1963. Present ice cream consumption is more than double the per capita rate of 25 years ago.

Farmers Urged To Sign Up ACP Plans

Morgan county farmers desiring to participate in the 1965 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) should make application by Friday, Feb. 5, says Floyd Goodpasture, vice chairman of the Morgan ASCS committee.

Practices for which federal funds are available to pay a share of the cost include pasture or meadow development, lime and rock phosphate applications, contour strip-cropping, tree plantings, farm ponds, forest improvement or protection, sod waterways, terraces, water diversions, erosion control dams, water channel and outlet protection structures, contouring intertilled crops, drainage ditches, line lines, winter cover seedlings, critical area seeding and cover for wildlife.

In most cases farmers pay about half the cost and agree to maintain the practices. Technical assistance in planning certain practices is provided by the Soil Conservation Service and the Forestry Service.

'Opportunity' Loans Available Through FHA

Loans to help farm and rural families with limited earnings develop new sources of income are now available through the Farmers Home Administration, under the provisions of the Economic Opportunity Act enacted by the 88th Congress.

"These measures include long-term loans to finance the development of small family businesses that will increase family income," says Norman T. Torrens, FHA supervisor for this area.

Funds may be advanced for such purposes as farm machinery repair shops, well drilling, roadside markets, guide services, home production of handicrafts, custom agricultural services such as land preparation, harvesting and processing facilities, and a variety of other income-producing facilities.

Loans to farm families or individuals to develop small businesses will range up to $2,500, and they will carry an interest rate of 4½ percent and must be repaid within 15 years. Loan funds and operating plans for new business ventures will be supervised by Farmers Home Administration.

The new loans are available to farm and rural families as well as individuals who need a small amount of capital to improve their earnings but cannot qualify for credit from existing public or private sources, including other Farmers Home Administration loans.

Family farmers and rural residents may qualify for an opportunity loan for a nonfarm enterprise if they receive an income from all sources that is too low to cover basic family needs, and are unable to obtain credit through other sources.

Additional information on loan programs under Economic Opportunity Act is available at the Farmers Home Administration office at 15 Permac Road, Jacksonville.

J. C. Hackleman Recognized By Indiana Society

A long-time Indiana Seedsman and an official of the Illinois Crop Improvement association have received the 1965 soils and crops award of the Indiana Crop Improvement association.

The award—a pen and pencil desk set—was presented at the association's banquet at Purdue University.

Herman L. Miller, Route 1, Bluffton, and J. C. Hackleman, Urbana, Ill., received the sets.

Miller, 80, has been working with certified seed since 1908. The oldest certified seed corn producer in Indiana, Miller raised 119 acres of corn and 137 acres of soybeans last year. He operates a 307-acre farm near Bluffton where he has been farming since 1906.

Hackleman, R. 3, county, Ind., native, is public relations officer of the Illinois Crop Improvement association. A 1910 Purdue school of agriculture graduate, he received the M.S. degree from the University of Missouri and served as an Extension crops specialist at the University of Illinois from 1919 to 1956.

Hackleman is a Fellow of the American Society of Agronomy and holds membership in the American Soybean association and the International Crop Improvement association. He served in Western Europe in 1952-53 as crop production specialist for the Mutual Security Agency.

Cut Your Own Taxes: 13

'Average' Out Big Income Year

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
You are in for a pleasant surprise when making out your income tax return if during 1964 your total income was considerably more than it had averaged during the four previous years.

This windfall income for 1964 could have come from a big promotion with a substantial salary increase, perhaps a sizable incentive bonus, steady work with much overtime after several lean years or even a clean-up made on a quiz show.

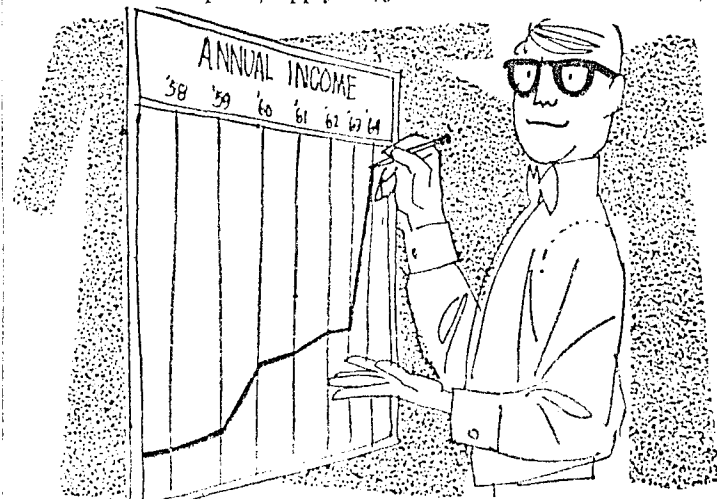

It's all due to a new feature in the Revenue Act of 1964 called "income averaging." The big purpose of income averaging is to give a tax break to those persons with wide fluctuations in income, usually athletes, prize fighters, authors, actors and actresses. But the principle is not limited to these groups and the tax-saving feature may be used profitably by any taxpayer to whom certain basic rules, which we will explain, apply.

You are now permitted to average all types of income except capital gains, gambling profits, income from gifts and bequests and premature distribution received by owner-employees under a pension plan. With the tax rate increasing several points with each ascending bracket, the savings resulting from holding income down into a low bracket are readily apparent.

The rule is effective whenever taxable income for 1964 is at least $3,000 more than 4-3 of the average taxable income for the four previous years. This excess is termed averageable income. The tax on it is the tax on 1-5 of the averageable income multiplied by five.

To illustrate the workings of the new rule let's take a hypothetical case:

Tom Jones, a married man whose wife had no income of her own in 1964, has had an average taxable income of $9,000 for the four previous years. Last year, because of a new job on a commission basis, he had a taxable income of $32,000.

If income climbs sharply, average it for tax break.

As we go through his income averaging procedure you will see how this one rule change has saved him $2,500. Here is how he determined his tax under the new formula:

1964 Taxable income	$32,000
4-3 Base Period Income ($9,000)	12,000
Averageable income	$20,000

The tax on 1-5 of the averageable income ($4,000) is found this way: Tax on $16,000 (4-3 of $9,000 plus 1-5 of $20,000)

Less tax on $12,000 (4-3 of $9,000)	2,420
Tax on 1-5 Averageable Income	$1,080

To find the total tax: Tax on $12,000 (4-3 of $9,000)

Tax on averageable income (5 X $1,080)	5,400
Total tax	$7,820

A year ago with higher tax rates and no income averaging procedure the same taxpayer would have paid $10,400 on his $32,000 taxable income.

Note that reference has been made throughout this discussion to taxable income and not to gross income for the year. Taxable income is that amount remaining from total income after all deductions, credits for dependents and personal exemptions have been claimed.

The importance of having available your taxable income figures for the four previous years is readily apparent. If you do not have copies of the returns for those years you may obtain photostatic copies from the revenue director in the district in which you filed. He will charge you 50 cents for each page copied.

Because the taxable income figure changed from Page 1 to Page 2 of the returns during some of those years, to be on the safe side order copies of both pages for each of the four years. Should you need those copies, don't wait until the last moment. Your revenue director and his staff will be busy at that time handling the rush of newly filed returns.

NEXT: The changes on child care.

Volunteers In U.S. Domestic Peace Corps Report For Active Duty Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — About two weeks from now the first volunteers in the government's new domestic Peace Corps will report for active duty.

Their job: to live close to and learn the problems of America's poor people, and to help them help themselves.

Their official name: VISTA, Volunteers in Service to America.

Their boss: an energetic, trim and eager man who might have been a baseball major leaguer if his arm hadn't gone bad. He is Glenn W. Ferguson, only 35 years old.

Ferguson anticipates the same sort of idealistic service which made the Peace Corps one of President John F. Kennedy's most praised endeavors.

Ferguson, who has been working in the Peace Corps for three years, now has the job of recruiting, selecting, training and directing an estimated 3,500 VISTA volunteers.

"They'll come from everywhere in the country," he said in an interview. "They'll be all ages over 18 — of all our applicants, 25 to 35 per cent are 60 or over, with skills they can teach."

The volunteers will get a monthly living allowance that will vary according to where they work, plus $50 a month that won't be paid until the service is completed.

Married couples are eligible, if both husband and wife qualify for service. The period for service is one year, including a training program of four or six weeks — which the first volunteers are now completing. Training is being "contracted out" by VISTA — that is, conducted by private and public organizations, including colleges and universities.

The work calls for a variety of skills, trades and professions. Ferguson said: "Volunteers will work on rural and urban community action programs, migrant worker communities, Indian reservations, hospitals, schools and institutions for the mentally ill or mentally retarded."

Volunteers may be sent to any of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the Trust Territories. An applicant may express a preference.

Ferguson has trouble because people confuse VISTA with the Job Corps, a separate and much larger part of President Johnson's anti poverty program.

The Job Corps, something like the Civilian Conservation Corps of the depression 1930s, will try to provide basic education, work and training for dropouts and other young men and women — 40,000 the first year and 100,000 the second.

"I am firmly convinced," Ferguson said, "that the VISTA volunteers can provide the human element which has been a missing element in the war against poverty."

He sees the work as an organized, full-time extension of the services that have been given over many years by individuals helping on a part-time basis and by groups such as the Gray Ladies, who are volunteer hospital workers.

The VISTA head office — shabby by Washington standards — fits right into the poverty picture. It is "an abandoned hotel," as one staffer called it, next door to a storage warehouse.

There isn't enough furniture for callers and office workers to sit at the same time. Ferguson's office is austere to the point of bareness.

How Ferguson got there is a story in itself. Born in Syracuse, N.Y., he moved with his family to the Washington area while in high school. He pitched a no-hit baseball game for Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School over Georgetown Prep, and went on to Cornell University.

At Cornell Ferguson majored in economics, headed the Interfraternity Council, played wingback in football and pitched for the baseball team. He won attention from the Washington Senators baseball team, but never got to the minor leagues — his arm went sore.

After Air Force service during the Korean war, he went into the government and in 1961, joined the Peace Corps.

In the Peace Corps and now in VISTA, Ferguson has been busy and happy. He still gets in an occasional touch football game at the home of his boss, Sargent Shriver, who is leading President Johnson's war on poverty.

Spartans Nip Winchester With 63-60 Overtime Win

WINCHESTER — North Greene's Dave Manning picked up a three-point play with 1:30 remaining in an overtime as the Spartans edged Winchester 63-60 here Friday night in IVC play.

Wildcat Rex Brockhouse threw the game into extra minutes when he stashed away a jumper with four seconds of the regulation time showing.

Triopia Claims Important PMSC Margin By 66-58

CHAPIN — Triopia kept its PMSC conference record intact with an important 66-58 league triumph over Chandlerville here Friday night.

The eventual winners led most of the way but by small margins. John Werries and Phelps Shepard both scored big for the winners with 42 between them.

Triopia led 14-10 after the opening eight minutes and by 33-26 at halftime. Chandlerville rallied to close the gap in the third period.

The Comets came within 42-41 in the third stanza but two buckets by Jim Paul pulled the Trojans back into command to stay.

The win leaves the Trojans with a 4-0 slate in the PMSC, second only to Virginia's 5-0 mark, to set up a league showdown later in February.

Carroll Logue hit 17 and Dale Edge 16 for the losers.

WILDCATS WIN 4TH WITH 92-75 MARGIN

PALMYRA — Northwestern raced to its fourth victory of the year here Friday night, leading all the way in an easy 92-75 MSM conference decision over winless Diverson.

The Wildcats raced to a 26-20 first-quarter margin and held 47-37 halftime difference. From there the eventual winners had little trouble in garnering the triumph.

Ron Paluska threw in 23 points for the winners, followed by 23 from Greg Hunt as eight players scored for Northwestern.

Virden Drops Franklin In Final Seconds 58-54

FRANKLIN — Virden's Mike Johnson cashed-in on the one-and-one at the free throw line with eight seconds remaining in the game, and threw the MSM conference race into a tie for second place as the Bulldogs edged Franklin here Friday night 58-54.

Kincaid was 6-0 in first place, and could be in the undisputed lead depending on the outcome of their contest Friday night. Franklin lost the game at the charity line, missing 17 opportunities, while Virden stayed in the contest with nine of ten in the fourth quarter.

With a 27-21 margin at the intermission, Virden caught the Flashes in the third period, when the Flashes blew nine chances at the free throw stripe. Virden put away 24 markers to Franklin's 10 in the third period and then whittled away a 10 point fourth quarter lead to two points, before Johnson tied it in the last eight seconds.

Routt Wins Fifth With 64-48 Edge

PERRY — Routt came from a first-quarter deficit to take over just before half and wrapped the game up for a 64-48 PMSC conference decision over the Perry Pioneers here Friday night.

The winning Rockets grabbed off 50 rebounds to only 28 by the slightly shorter Pioneers for a decisive margin.

Perry owned a 16-14 edge after eight minutes of play, but Routt used a pair of late free throws to take a two-point margin in at halftime.

Rocket Bill Templin hit all six of his points in the first quarter.

The second half turned out to be all Routt as the Rockets gained a 16-13 edge in the third ground and a decisive 22-11 fourth-period difference.

Leo Carroll got 11 of his game-high 20 points in the decisive second half, while Jerry McGinnis scored 12 of his 18 in the final two quarters.

While holding a big edge off the boards, the Rockets were outshot from the field, 42% to 38%.

UCLA, Wichita Upset By Iowa, Chicago Loyola

CHICAGO (AP) — With Chris Pervall scoring 28 points, Iowa's unranked Hawkeyes upset top-rated UCLA 67-42 after Loyola of Chicago had stunned Wichita 93-82 in a Chicago Stadium basketball doubleheader Friday night.

The Bruins' loss was only their second in their last 45 games. Illinois downed the 1964 NCAA champions 110-83 in December. It gives UCLA a 13-2 mark while Iowa is 10-5.

After the score was tied seven times and the lead changed hands 13 times in the first half, the count was locked 45-45 at intermission. Pervall pumped in 12 points in the first half with teammates Jim Rodgers adding 11 and Dennis Pauling 12.

Behind the scoring of Pervall and George Peoples, Iowa climbed into a 52-47 lead in the opening minutes of the second half and held on until the end.

Loyola overcame a 45-point performance by Dave Stallworth, who ends his eligibility for Wichita in Saturday night's game with Louisville. The Ramblers compensated by a 38-point output by Billy Smith, playing his first game of the season after being scholastically ineligible.

It was Markey's follow-up basket after taking Jim Coleman's hoop-rimmed rebound that was decisive. Markey scored only 10 points for the entire game, which was tied 18 times with the lead changing 22 times.

Smith's basket in the final 30 seconds of regulation sent the game into the extra five minutes.

Central Counts Easy 84-71 Edge

PITTSFIELD — Despite a 28-point performance by 5'9" guard Stan Boyd, the Central of Camp Point Eagle posted a resounding 84-71 triumph over Pittsfield in the losers gym.

The Midwest Conference title was deadlocked after the first quarter but the Eagle outscored their opponents in each of the remaining frames to coast home with the win.

The crowd was brought to its feet at the end of the third quarter when Bob Lehnerts sank a one-handed desperation shot from mid-court as the horn sounded.

Central had four men in double figures. Mike Reuschel led the victors with 26 as they netted 53% of their shots from the field. Pittsfield could only manage 35% in the same department.

Battle Under Boards

Four players, two from each team, fight for a side rebound during the Jacksonville-East Peoria game Friday night in the JHS four-team tournament. In the middle of the pack is JHS's Dennis Sergeant (10) and East Peoria's Ken Abel (43). The Crimsons scored an easy 81-53 triumph.

Four Jacksonville players have a rebound surrounded while an East Peoria man looks on hopelessly from behind. Covering the ball are, l-r, Ron Coleman, Creston Whitaker, Steve Bone and Dennis Wegehoff.

Hannibal's Jim Hansen comes down with a rebound in front of Lincolnwood's Lynn Johnson. Hannibal handed Lincolnwood its second loss in 17 games, 50-49, in tournament play Friday night.

CARLINVILLE NIPS STAUNTON BY 48-42

CARLINVILLE — Carlinville jumped to a first-half lead then held off a late Staunton charge to rack up a narrow 48-42 triumph in a South Central conference game here Friday evening.

The two outfits were tied at 11-11 after the first quarter, but Carlinville held a 27-19 spread at halftime. In the decisive frame, Ron Snidle got five and Ron Young and Mike Golden four each for the Cavaliers.

Staunton came within two at the start of the final eight minutes but five points by Bill Heinz pulled the Cavaliers out of a hole and preserved the lead.

The eventual winners racked up an impressive 53% shooting clip for the game to Staunton's 36% average.

Snidle's 15 paced the winners, while Bob Barnhart threw in a like number for the losers.

Carlinville is now 5-2 in the league action.

BIRDS POST 77-44 EDGE FROM TIGERS

PIASA — Southwestern stormed into a six point lead, upped it to 17 in the second quarter, to take a 77-44 runaway from Greenfield here Friday night.

Art Huckelbridge paced the Birds in the second quarter as he canned five of six from the field for ten of his night's 18.

Southwestern got six and seven point help from Val Meyer and Ed Campion, respectively, in the third period as the Birds moved to a 57-36 lead.

The Box Score:

Bob Johnson of Houston, Tex., is a 6-foot-3 forward on the University of Washington basketball team. He's a junior.

Birds Down Tigers For 14th Win

VIRGINIA — Behind the superb shooting of Wood Gebhardt, the Virginia Redbirds breezed to an easy victory here Friday night to retain their lead in PMSC conference play.

Gebhardt, a 6-7 senior, hit for 12 of 20 from the field and four from the line in amassing a total of 28 points. Steve Graves was the only other man in double figures for the victors.

Virginia opened up an early lead and held a 32-22 advantage at the intermission. ISD was overpowered throughout the 1st half even though the Redbirds only hit 35% from the field.

The winners started the second half with three quick buckets and from there on it was a run away with Gebhardt leading the charge. The Redbirds scored 25 in the third quarter and the fourth frame saw a substitute quintet for Virginia.

Forward Mike Hummel led the ISD Tigers with 22 points closely followed by Ray Richardson who tallied 13.

The victory leaves Virginia with a season mark of 14-1 and a conference total of 6-0.

The Redbirds also capped the sophomore game by a score of 41-29.

Three other Lakeland players scored more than 17 points: Phil Springer had 18, Jim Kuter had 17 and Dean Sandifer had 15.

Gary Adams had 25 points for Teachers to pace all scorers. Teachers led at halftime 56-49 but Lakeland went ahead early in the second half and was never threatened.

Stranahan Quits Pro Golf Tour For More Study

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Stranahan, a winner of 25 amateur golf championships and a touring pro since 1954, has given up competitive golf for study.

The 42-year-old Stranahan is a graduate student at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. He's trying to promote a new Stranahan image—businessman, not golfer.

Heir to a spark-plug fortune, Stranahan has business interests in oil, real estate, manufacturing and finance. His corporate offices are in Phoenix, Ariz. At one time he thought he could both play golf and run his business interests.

"I realized, however, that I would have to be better trained to tackle the business problems of the future," he said during some spare time at the university, where he is working for his masters degree in finance.

A graduate of the University of Miami, Stranahan actually resumed his education in 1962, taking a special course at Harvard's graduate school of business. Eventually he decided to return to school full time and chose Penn.

Won British Amateur

As an amateur, Stranahan won the British Amateur championship twice, was runner up in the U.S. Amateur, and on several occasions beat the top-ranked professionals in open tournaments. His best showing after he turned professional was a victory in the 1958 Los Angeles Open.

Stranahan lives here in a modern apartment with his wife, the former Ann Williams, and their three sons, Frank Jr., and Jimmy, in the fourth and second grades respectively, and 2-year-old Lance.

What about golf?

He says the tour seems far away. Gradually he has decreased the number of events played in and has no plans to compete this year.

"I look at the golf bag every once in awhile and get homesick for the course," he admits.

"But I came to study and that's what I have to do."

Cozza Promoted To Head Grid Coach At Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A happy Carmen Cozza, making no effort to conceal his emotions, was promoted Friday from chief assistant to Yale's 32nd head football coach.

The balding 34-year-old Cozza, a former football and baseball star at Miami of Ohio, succeeds his close friend John Pont.

Pont resigned a week ago to become head coach at Indiana University and before leaving highly recommended Cozza for the Yale job.

In making the announcement, Friday athletic director DeLano Kipphut stressed that it was not an intermediate appointment, and that Cozza "has won the admiration of the Yale Athletic Association family" in his two years at the university.

Nothing was said about the financial terms, but Cozza probably signed for some $14,000 a year.

Cozza, a Pont aide since 1956, plans only a few changes in a system which basically consists of professional football formations with close flankers and split ends.

"We'll have to adjust to the new rules changes, of course," said the 5-11, 190-pound Cozza, who looks like he could pick up from where he left off as an aggressive defensive back and teammate of Pont at Miami in the early 1950s.

"You know," smiled Cozza, "the first person I wanted to tell about it, after my wife, was Pont. But he was en route somewhere in Ohio, so I sent him a telegram."

Royal Has Chat With Star End

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas football Coach Darrell Royal had a long telephone chat with George Sauer Jr. Friday "just to let him know I value his friendship as much now as I did six months ago."

"I think he feels the same," Royal said.

Young Sauer, star Texas end, has become the center of a dispute in professional and college football circles since he announced he would waive another year of eligibility at Texas and sign a pro football contract with the New York Jets of the American Football League.

Royal was quoted recently as saying he will stop all recruiting and scouting privileges of AFL scouts if the Jets sign young Sauer.

"I don't think any of that has changed," Royal said after he talked with young Sauer. "I think he (Sauer) will be back on the campus here Sunday and I think he still wants to sign with the pros."

Monmouth Dumps IC In 2nd Half, 98-77

MONMOUTH — Illinois College fell victim to some hot second-half Monmouth shooting here Friday night and came out on the short end of a 98-77 count.

The Blueboys stayed in the game until the final ten minutes when Monmouth got hot and put the game on ice.

IC was without the full-time services of two regulars, Harold Kund and Bucky Sullivan. Sullivan suffered an early knee injury and sat out the remainder, while Kund saw only part time duty with sore feet.

A hot Monmouth duo of Gary Gilliland and Rich Rodgers led the eventual winners, as two others hit double figures. Gilliland poured in 26 and Rodgers 22.

Five players hit double figures for the Blueboys, who suffered their ninth loss in 11 games. Jim Bruner was high with 16, followed by Dan Runkle with 14 and Dick Clough with 13.

The game was nip and tuck for most of the first half. Both teams held slim leads in the opening minutes. IC for the last time at 21-20. From there Monmouth charged to a nine-point edge and held a seven-point difference at intermission.

Gilliland got 15 and Rodgers 10 in the half, while Bruner canned 12 for the Blueboys.

Monmouth ripped off the first six points of the second 20 minutes and increased the difference to 13 points. Four buckets by Clough, two by Greer and free throws by Bruner allowed the Blueboys to make their last serious charge which cut the difference to eight, 70-62, with 11 minutes to go. From there Monmouth poured it on and was never threatened.

For the game Monmouth hit a hot 47% clip to IC's mediocre 35% rate.

Pleasant Hill Takes Valley Lead 48-39

PLEASANT HILL — Pleasant Hill took the lions share of the Illinois Valley conference race away from Carrollton here Friday night with a 48-39 victory.

Both teams had been deadlocked in the loop race prior to Friday night.

Carrollton, hitting a meager 20% for the game, fell prey to the Wolves in the first half as Pleasant Hill held down a 31-10 halftime margin.

Jerry Johnson, who led all scorers with 19 points, picked-up nine of his markers in the second half, as the Wolves outscored the Hawks 15-6.

Carrollton stormed back in the fourth quarter, while three Pleasant Hill starters Johnson, Keith Johnston and Randy Hubbard all played with four fouls.

For the game, Pleasant Hill hit for 30% on 20 of 66, while the Hawks were 20% on 14 of 70 from the field.
